

Sabrina and Sebastian looked at each other.

Sabrina raised an eyebrow and said, "I'll be leaving now."

"Alright!" the man said emotionlessly.

Sabrina was speechless. "..."

What was wrong?

Actually, they did not do anything in the 30 minutes they spent together in his office. She was just shocked to hear Kingston addressing Sean. She really did not want to meet her father-in-law. She clearly knew that all their troubles were caused by her father-in-law, but still, he refused to let her go.

And Holden Payne.

Sabrina knew he loved her. But she could not stop him from doing so.

Every time her father-in-law came, he insisted on bringing up the past.

Every time her father-in-law came, he insisted on bringing up the past. Every time this happened, Sebastian's expression would turn ugly. Sabrina knew him well by now.

He was a brave and fearless man, so there was nothing in this world that frightened him, but he was a jealous man. When he was jealous, he acted like a teenage girl.

As the director of a large group of companies, when he got jealous, he was unreasonable and domineering. As a result, every single time, Sabrina would suffer.

That was why, when she heard Kingston talking with her father-in-law outside, she was as terrified as if she had seen a ghost. Coincidentally, at that moment, she was sitting on her husband's lap. She rolled off of his lap immediately and had no choice but to hide under the table.

After hiding under the table for a few

...g under the table for a few minutes, she realized something was wrong with Sebastian. He was utterly silent.

Only then did Sabrina raise her head and glanced at him. There were balls of irrepressible flames in his eyes. Only then did she realize, not only was she hiding underneath the table. In fact, she was crouched between his legs. Her eyes widened in fright.

She carefully crawled out from behind his legs and dashed into the bathroom. She locked herself in the bathroom, only coming out after half an hour.

• She did not dare to leave the office alone, so she asked him to accompany her to go out and take a look, to see whether her father-in-law had left.

Alas, once again, they ran into her father-in-law outside.

She suspected that Sebastian did it o

She suspected that Sebastian did it on purpose! Kingston would report to Sebastian whether Sean had left or not.

She could tell Sebastian was determined not to let her leave today. She raised her head and looked at him, asking him in a suspicious tone. "If I left now, what would happen to me?"

"I would divorce you."

Sabrina. "..."

She followed him back into his office obediently. The moment she entered, the door slammed shut behind her, and he lifted her up by the waist and pinned her to the door.

Sabrina: "Ah..."
