By eBooksCat

Back then after Luna's accident, Joshua and the police had investigated for a very long time.

In the end, they only managed to find out that the truck was a stolen one.

Back then, the driver's face could not be seen clearly because the traffic surveillance was destroyed.

Jason smiled and admitted it generously with a chuckle, "Of course, it was me."

Then, Jason relaxedly placed both his arms behind his head. He looked at Joshua lazily. Joshua furrowed his brows tightly.

"Why are you pretending to be so shocked, Mr. Lynch? Back then, funds were transferred from your company's account to fund my escape. If it wasn't you, who would possibly be able to get the company to transfer five hundred thousand dollars to such an irrelevant person like me?"

"I know that you want to please Luna right now, you want to pretend that the incident back then had nothing to do with you. If it was previously, you could just give me a hundred thousand or two and I'll play along with you to keep your secret."

Then, Jason raised his brows and looked at Bonnie through the window, who was grabbing onto Luna and talking to her outside.

"But now, I have her. When I marry her, I would also become one of the wealthiest in Banyan City. If you want me to play along with your act..."

Jason rubbed his fingers together. "You need to give me more money."

Joshua narrowed his eyes fiercely. Six years ago, the public account, five hundred thousand dollars.

He still remembered clearly.

The five hundred thousand dollars was all the bonus and salary for Aura as his personal secretary.

At that time, Aura professed with grief that her sister Luna Gibson went missing. She wanted to take out all of her money from her salary to help look for her.

Even when Joshua said that he would search using all his powers so that Aura did not need to spend any money or effort, she was still determined to do so.

Joshua was touched by Aura's actions, so much so he even got the bursary to give her more money.

Initially, it was only three hundred thousand, but it was increased to five hundred thousand in the end.

He never would have thought...

Joshua squinted his eyes and swept Jason a cold glance. "Back then, the person that contacted you saying that I wanted to kill my wife was a woman, was it?"

Jason nodded. "Ah, you finally recalled."

Joshua took a deep breath and stood up. He looked at Jason condescendingly.

"Why are you telling me so much, aren't you afraid?" I'll get the cops to arrest you?"

After all, Jason was the one who created such an accident that forced Luna to change her looks. If accountability was taken, Jason would not fare well too.

Jason laughed.

"If the cops would arrest me, the person that did it, wouldn't they also arrest you, the mastermind behind this?"

He chuckled unrestrainedly, "Joshua, don't forget, we're in the same boat! "

Looking at how arrogant Jason was, Joshua could not help but smile.

He bent down and said in an extremely cold yet overwhelmingly authoritative tone, "Then, let's see shall we, whether you and I are on the same boat or not."

Then, Joshua turned and left.

He needed to return to the office to check on the accounts from six years ago as well as investigate some stuff.

"Luna."

Outside Bamboo Palace, Bonnie grabbed onto Luna's hand. "I think there must be some misunderstanding between you and Joshua."

Luna looked through the window. Joshua had just finished talking with Jason and was storming off angrily. She sneered. "What misunderstanding could there be?"

Joshua kept telling Luna that he did not know who Jason was and was not well acquainted with him.

However, when she left with Bonnie, when it was only Joshua and Jason left, Joshua started reprimanding Jason.

Luna could even guess the reason Joshua was reprimanding Jason.

It was only because Jason did not play his part well that made Luna see the signs.

Joshua was a pretentious man right from the beginning.

"But..." Bonnie sighed. She grabbed Luna's hand tightly. She wanted to calm her down. "Jason has told me before that he does not know Mr. Lynch well at all. Even if he might lie to me about other stuff, he did not need to lie to me about this. I have been with Jason for so long, but I have never seen him interact with Mr. Lynch. Have you misunderstood Mr. Lynch?"

Pursuing My Ex-Wife Isn't Easy chapter 711 By eBooksCat

A misunderstanding?

Luna harrumphed coldly. She swept Bonnie a flat gaze.

"You might believe what Jason says, but I don't."

Luna felt that Jason only told Bonnie that he was not well acquainted with Joshua and was most likely trying to help cover for the things that Joshua has done.

Bonnie furrowed her brows.

"Luna, although Jason has also lied to me about other things, there is no need for him to lie to me about this. You..."

Before Bonnie could finish her sentence, her phone rang.

It was Jason.

Sitting in the restaurant, Jason looked at both of them outside through the window coldly.

"Are you done? Are we still eating or not?"

His tone was a little fierce. Bonnie's heart skipped a beat. "Yes, yes, we'll eat! "

Then, she immediately hung up and pulled Luna back into the restaurant.

Once the waiters had served all the dishes, Bonnie urged Luna to start eating.

Luna ate very little.

The entire meal, she was observing Jason.

After a long while, when they finished the meal, Luna calmly placed her utensils down and swept Jason a glance.

"Your conversation with Joshua just now didn't seem to go very well?"

It was fine when Luna did not mention Joshua. However, upon the mention of Joshua, Jason was aggravated.

He thought that he was about to become Bonnie's husband, he would be somewhat a public figure in Banyan City, so Joshua should at least treat him with respect.

However, Joshua did not.

Jason looked at Luna and sneered, "Yes, we argued. Because I was not willing to help Joshua lie to you, so he got mad."

Then, Jason harrumphed coldly. He initially wanted to say something else, but Bonnie involuntarily clutched her tummy. Her face turned pale. "My...my tummy hurts."

Joshua furrowed his brows and looked at her impatiently. "Didn't your period just end?"

Bonnie was in so much pain she was sweating profusely. "I don't think this is about my period. My tummy just hurts."

Bonnie bit her lips. "I want to go to the hospital."

Jason rolled his eyes at her. "How pretentious. When we were in the countryside, didn't we always have stomach pain? We'll just bear through it. Why is there a need to go to the hospital?"

Luna looked at how Bonnie was in so much pain she could not even speak. Then, she looked at Jason. She immediately took her phone out and dialed the emergency number.

The ambulance came quickly.

The doctor's preliminary diagnosis was that Bonnie had acute gastroenteritis.

When Bonnie reached the hospital, she was in so much pain she passed out. Seeing Bonnie being pushed into the emergency room, Jason furrowed his brows a little irritably.

"Women are so troublesome."

Luna narrowed her eyes. "Are you like that with your wife too?"

"She won't get sick so easily," Jason immediately replied to Luna's question, "Her health is much better than mine."

Then, Jason suddenly noticed that something was not right. He furrowed his brows and turned to look at Luna, with a guarded expression.

"How did you know about my wife..."

Suddenly, he narrowed his eyes. "Did Zach and Yuri those two traitors tell you?"

Luna laughed a little, "Are they traitors? In my eyes, you, who cheat on other people, are the traitors."

Jason smiled. "Cheat? You overestimate the relationship between Bonnie and me."

Jason's voice was ice cold. "I never liked Bonnie once."

After all, Jason did not have any secrets to keep from Luna anymore, so he would rather just put it all out there.

"I got together with Bonnie previously because I know that she is from the Craig family. Everyone in Banyan City knows that the richest are the Lynch family, then the Smiths, then the Craigs."

Jason changed into a more comfortable position, leaning against the wall. He fished a cigarette out and was about to light it. He noticed Luna pointing at the No Smoking sign. He hesitated for a while before putting his cigarette away.

"Back then, when Bonnie and I got together. I truly thought that she would reconcile with the Craig family. That way, I will get to be a son-in-law of the Craigs."

Jason said coldly while putting his cigarette back in its box, "Who would have known that Bonnie was so unlikable. The Craigs would not reconcile with her. So, for money, I accepted a job."

Then, he raised his eyebrows and looked at Luna. " Yours. Joshua was pretty generous. Five hundred thousand.

"I went abroad and met my wife there. We had a pretty happy life there, but money would always be depleted. We were just worrying about where to get money when all of the Craig family died. Bonnie became the only heir."

He smiled extremely deviously. "How could we give up on such a chance?"

Luna narrowed her eyes. She clenched her fists tightly by her sides.

In her pocket, the recording device was still secretly recording it all.

"Did your wife agree to you doing all this?" _ "Of course."

Jason laughed out loud.

"The entire city knows about the marriage between Bonnie and I. Do you think I would be able to successfully marry Bonnie if my wife did not agree to it?"

Luna was silent for a while. After a while, she laughed.

"You're right. Birds of a feather flock together. Naturally, your wife doesn't have many principles either."

"Principles? What are those?" Jason harrumphed coldly and crossed his arms around his chest. "You sure have principles, but are you living better than us right now?"

Jason's words were like a knife violently stabbing Luna's heart.

Yes. She has her principles, but was she having a better time compared to anyone else?

Two out of her four children were dead. The living ones, one of them had a terminal illness, the other was autistic.

The people who hurt her were out there living freely.

A wave of hatred overwhelmed her. She wanted to rush forward and kill Jason!

She wanted to dissect Jason and Joshua's chest. To see if they truly had a heart or not!

How could a person with a beating heart do such things!

Waves of emotions raged in Luna's eyes. She forcefully suppressed the hatred in her heart and continued to encourage Jason to speak more. "Did you not like Bonnie one bit? She has liked you for so many years."

Jason sneered, "As you said, she has liked me for so many years. If I truly liked her, I would have liked her a long time ago, did I need to wait for so long?"

Luna narrowed her eyes upon Jason's words.

Jason suddenly warped into Joshua in front of her.

His cold voice was telling her a hard face. If he liked her, he would have liked her a long time ago, he did not need to wait for so long.

Bonnie's silly infatuation was just like her back then. It was pathetic and funny.

Luna sniffled her nose and looked away, saying nothing else.

Soon, Jason's phone rang. He did not hide away from Luna. He immediately picked the call up.

"Hmm, wait a little longer. When the marriage ceremony is over, I'll go look for you and our son. You don't have enough money? I'll transfer some to you. Bonnie even gave me some money to spend yesterday. That fool, she won't notice it..."

Luna remained in the same spot, clutching the recording device tightly.

She suddenly could not bear to record Jason humiliating Bonnie. However, in the end, Luna continued recording.

Perhaps, Bonnie could only truly let go under extreme heartbreak?

Just like her feelings for Joshua.

"Back then, when Bonnie and I got together. I truly thought that she would reconcile with the Craig family. That way, I will get to be a son-in-law of the Craigs."

"You don't have enough money? I'll transfer some to you. Bonnie even gave me some money to spend yesterday..."

"That fool, she won't notice it..." That night, at Blue Bay Villa.

Bonnie was in Luna's bedroom, listening to Luna's recording. Her face was paler than the color of the wall behind her.

Tears fell uncontrollably. Bonnie bit her lips and shook her head furiously.

"I don't believe it..." "Impossible..."

"How would Jason do this to me..."

Even if she said she did not believe it, the despair in her eyes already sold her out.

Luna sighed and gently held Bonnie's hand. "I was once as naive and foolish as you."

Bonnie could no longer hold back. She hugged Luna and wailed. While sobbing, she recounted how Jason was sincere and how much he sacrificed back then.

Luna silently listened to her, as if she was looking at her past, foolish self.

The two of them talked until late at night.

In the end, Bonnie wiped tears away from the reddened eyes. She looked at Luna.

"You previously said that I have to agree to a request of yours. Tell me. No matter what it is, I'll Bonnie spent the night at Luna's in Blue Bay Villa.

The next morning, Jason arrived at Blue Bay Villa early to pick Bonnie up to go try on wedding gowns.

Jason came too early, Bonnie was not awake yet. She cried the entire night. She only fell asleep early in the morning under Luna's comfort.

Luna brought Nellie and Neil downstairs. They immediately noticed Jason in the living room.

Upon hearing footsteps, Jason turned to look.

The moment he saw Nigel, his eyes widened in shock. "Didn't your son die already?"

"Yes, I'm a ghost." Nigel swept Jason a cold glance. "

I'm here to take your life."

Nigel's voice was so eerie, Jason was so frightened he was silenced.

After a while, he furrowed his brows, looked at Nigel, and laughed, "What life? I'm not the one who killed your brother."

Then, he could not help but size Nigel up and exclaimed, "Identical twins truly are magical. They look exactly the same. I almost mistook him."

Nigel harrumphed coldly and said nothing else.

Luna did not want to deal with Jason. She only swept him a flat glance. "Bonnie slept late last night. Why don't you come over in the afternoon? I think she'll sleep through the entire morning."

"It's fine. I can wait here." Jason leaned back on the sofa. He glanced at Luna and her children coldly. His attitude was extremely arrogant.

"I know that you hate me and you don't want to see me. But since you got Bonnie to stay at your place, you should have expected that I'll be here too."

Then, Jason looked around the decor in the villa. He sneered.

"Mr. Lynch sure is rich. He could just move out of such a luxurious villa to let you all stay. To put it nicely, he got you to stay here to take care of your two children. To put it harshly..."

Jason sneered and said, "He doesn't want to look at the three of you, he can't offend you, but he could hide from you! "

"You're lying!"

Nellie, who had been quiet all this while, was finally aggravated at Jason's words.

She let go of Luna's hand and ran down the stairs. She directly rushed to Jason, opened her mouth, and bit Jason's hand!

Nellie bit with all her might. The moment she bit him, Jason was in so much pain his eyes widened. He flung his arm hard.

Nellie was biting hard, Jason could not get her off!

"If you still continue this, don't blame me for being rude!" Jason furrowed his brows. His gaze turned vicious. He directly choked Nellie's neck.

It all happened too quickly, Luna could not react in time.

When she came to her senses, Jason was already choking Nellie. Nellie's face flushed red being choked by Jason, but she still bit on Jason's hand hard.

Luna manically rushed forward. Before she could push Jason away, a large hand reached over and directly twisted the arm which Jason was using to choke Nellie.

Jason was in pain so he involuntarily let Nellie go. "Nellie." A low man's voice rang out. "Let go."

Nellie lifted her head and saw that it was Joshua. At that only then did she sigh in relief and let go of Jason.

She bit her lips and looked at Joshua aggrievedly. "He said that you don't want to see us."

"He's lying."

Joshua looked at the red handprint around Nellie's neck. He was heartbroken. Viciousness flashed across his eyes.

The next second, Joshua pinned Jason to the ground. He stepped on Jason's back with his custom-made leather shoes.

"You're an adult, why are you going up against a six-year-old little girl?"

Luna rushed over and hugged Nellie in her arms. She comforted Nellie while looking at Jason and Joshua.

Joshua was stepping on Jason with a bone-chilling gaze.

Jason was on the ground, being stepped on. He tried to struggle and break free. His eyes were filled with reluctance and loathing.

Luna furrowed her brows.

If Joshua and Jason were putting on an act the day before, what about at that moment?

Instantaneous reactions could not lie.

Luna hugged Nellie. She was suddenly a little swayed. Could it be that...

Jason and Joshua really did not have anything to do with each other?

A person like Jason, someone who climbed up from the bottom of the social ladder to his current position, the thing he could not accept the most was being stepped on.

Joshua should know about this too, yet he still did it.

If Joshua and Jason were working together, was he not afraid that Jason might be angry and turn his back against him?

"Mr. Lynch."

Suddenly, Bonnie's voice came from the staircase behind them.

Bonnie, who was in Luna's pajamas, furrowed her brows and came down.

"Let him go, please." Bonnie walked down and stood in front of Joshua. "Treat it as out of respect for my late father. I remember that my father was pretty good friends with the Lynch family when he was still alive."

Joshua sneered. "I'm glad that you still think of Mr. Craig. If he was up above looking at how immature his daughter was, I'm afraid he might have regretted passing down the family's fortune to you."

Then, Joshua coldly retreated his foot. He looked down at Jason, who was fumbling to get up, condescendingly.

"Out of respect for Bonnie, I'll only give you a warning. If I ever see you harming my children again, I'll never let you go!"

Seeing Jason getting up, Bonnie hesitated for a moment. In the end, she strode over and gently helped him up. Her voice was tender.

"Jason, are you alright?" - "I'm fine."

Jason was in so much pain, but he still gently held Bonnie's hand. "Be good and go change your clothes. I'll take you to try on your wedding gown."

Bonnie smiled and nodded. "I'll go now."

Then, she turned to look at Luna, then Joshua. "Mr. Lynch, don't be angry. I'll leave with him soon."

Bonnie let out a breath and went upstairs.

Soon after, Bonnie has changed her clothes and left with Jason.

Once the both of them left, Lily came out from the kitchen in an apron. She smiled and said to Nigel and Nellie, "Young master, little princess, come and have your breakfast! "

Nellie pursed her lips and got up. She walked over next to Nigel. She held his hand without saying anything and headed to the dining room.

It was only Luna and Joshua left in the living room.

Looking at Nellie and Nigel sitting by the dining table having their meal, Luna furrowed her brows and swept Joshua a cold glance.

"Mr. Lynch, why are you here? Didn't you say that you'll let me stay here to take care of Nigel and Nellie and you won't come back easily? Why are you here uninvited after only the second day?"

Joshua furrowed his brows. He was rather apprehensive of her aloof attitude.

He narrowed his eyes. "You don't have to speak to me this way. We are not enemies."

Then, Joshua went upstairs.

"I came here because I wanted to take some documents I left here."

Joshua took a few steps before stopping in his tracks. He looked at Luna.

"Since you said previously that Jason is not a good person, yet you're spending your time with them every day. What is that all about? Are you playing with fire?"

Luna sneered and looked at Joshua. "Aren't I playing with fire every day? Jason might be a dangerous man, but are you not as well, Mr. Lynch?"

Joshua's expressions instantly darkened upon Luna's words.

He narrowed his eyes and looked at Luna. His voice was cold. "Must you compare me with a person like Jason?"

"That's because you both are the same type of person."

Luna chuckled a little. Her eyes were cool. "Not only are you both the same type of person, but you guys are still a team too."

Joshua furrowed his brows hard. He looked at Luna and enunciated, "Luna, I have already told you. I have nothing to do with Jason."

Luna smiled. "Who would believe you?"

"I can't help you if you don't believe me." Joshua looked at her deeply and went upstairs.

Upstairs, the door of the study was opened.

Luna stood in the same spot, looking at Joshua heading upstairs. She bit her lips.

Actually, from the moment Joshua rescued Nellie from Jason, based on their reactions, Luna had started to be a little swayed already.

However...

She still could not be sure whether they were putting on an act or not.

After all, Joshua was still the greatest actor. His acting skills were amazing.

"Mommy, come and eat."

At the dining table in the distance, Nigel called after Luna while taking food for Nellie.

Luna responded and headed over. She accompanied her two children for breakfast distractedly, while trying to listen to the movements upstairs.

Joshua went up for a very long time. It was as if he was not planning to come down.

She paused for a while and waved her hand, calling for Lily. She gently instructed into Lily's ears.

Lily nodded. She took off her apron and was about to head upstairs when Joshua had already come out from the study and headed downstairs.

Standing by the staircase, Joshua coldly glanced at Luna. "You don't have to worry about me overstaying my welcome. I'm leaving."

Then, Joshua placed the document under his arms, turned, and left.

Just when his hand was touching the doorknob, a little small hand tugged at him.

Joshua paused a little and subconsciously looked down.

Nellie, in a princess gown, was tugging on his sleeve. She was looking at him with her huge watery eyes filled with reluctance. "Eat with us."

Nellie spat those words out with difficulty. Joshua bent down, heartbroken.

He gently hugged Nellie's head. "I'm not hungry, you guys go ahead."

Although previously Nellie was not as mischievous as Neil, she was still lively and adorable.

However, at that moment...

After Nellie witnessed Neil and Theo's room being blasted, she changed.

Joshua sighed and gently patted Nellie on the back. "You'll get better."

Nellie shook her head. She firmly grabbed onto his sleeve. "Eat with us."

Joshua paused for a while. He subconsciously lifted his head and looked at Luna who was eating at the dining table.

She calmly swept him a glance. Their eyes met.

Luna furrowed her brows and avoided his gaze. "Then, stay. Lily made extra. There's enough for all of us."

"Okay!" Before Joshua could answer, Nellie answered on his behalf.

Joshua sighed helplessly. He placed the documents down, carried Nellie, and returned to the dining table.

The atmosphere by the dining table was a little weird.

Joshua kept taking food for Nigel and Nellie without saying anything.

"Mommy likes this." When Joshua placed some vegetables on Nellie's plate, Nigel could not help but say, "But Nellie never eats this."

| Then, Nigel looked at Joshua seriously. "Give them to Mommy."
