Pursuing My Ex-Wife Isn't Easy chapter 1151 - 1155

Pursuing My Ex-Wife Isn't Easy chapter 1151

Luna tried to struggle, but she got knocked unconscious soon after.

She found herself in an abandoned factory when she finally regained consciousness.

The leader of the men in black donned a mask, sitting opposite her, sizing her up coldly.

"You do look pretty. no wonder Joshua wanted to get engaged to you so quickly when he hasn't even recuperated," he remarked as he stood up and walked toward Luna.

He lifted his hand and clasped Luna's chin.

"It's already five right now. There's another hour left before the engagement ceremony begins. Say, if you don't appear during the ceremony later, would Joshua become Banyan City's laughingstock?"

The man had spritzed a thick scent of cheap cologne on him, and Luna had headaches from the smell.

She furrowed her brows and looked at the man in front of her. "Who are you?"

"You don't need to know." The man smiled a little. Those lecherous eyes behind the mask slowly moved down from Luna's face.

Her chin, her neck, her collarbone, further down... Suddenly, he raised his eyebrows and sneered.

"Besides not letting you appear, there is a better way," he said in a suppressed tone. His voice was filled with desire and condescension. "Let you appear at the engagement ceremony full of marks from me. Would Joshua be even more embarrassed that way?"

Luna's eyes turned cold upon the man's words. She subconsciously tried to struggle, trying her hardest to retreat her tied-up body backward.

"Who the hell are you? If you have any feud with Joshua, find him to solve it instead. Why come at me?"

The manic in the man's eyes got even stronger looking at Luna struggling.

He smiled and slowly went closer toward Luna.

"Of course I should come to you. Who asked you to be Joshua's woman? You both are getting engaged tonight. If I don't target you, how could I make Joshua suffer?" he sneered while reaching out to tug on Luna's collar.

Luna noticed that there was a noticeable burn scar on his right hand.

The burn scar... She seemed to have seen it somewhere before.

However, at that moment, she was so panicked that she could not recall where she saw that before.

The man seemed to have noticed Luna looking at his scar. He was instantly infuriated, slapping her squarely.

"What are you looking at? Haven't you ever seen someone else's burn scar from young?"

Then, he used his sleeve to cover up the scar on his hand. He continued to go up against Luna violently. Luna's body was tied up, and she was forced to a corner. She could not even hide.

Rip!

Suddenly, the man used force and ripped Luna's chiffon shirt apart.

Luna's fair skin was instantly exposed in the air. "My, my, white lace."

The man's eyes almost popped out looking at her bosom. The other men in the distance were excited, too.

Luna instinctively wanted to cover herself up with her hands, but her hands were being tied behind her back. She could not even cover herself.

The man in the mask ogled at her, almost drooling. He slowly approached her.

“No wonder Joshua liked you so much. Who knew that your amazing body looks even greater when you take your clothes off!”

Then, he was about to reach his dirty hands out to Luna.

In the nick of the moment, Luna bit her lip. An idea immediately came to her. She bit her lip and yelled, “ Stop touching me! Don’t use that ugly, scarred hand of yours to touch me! ”

The man had slapped her the moment she stared at his scar, so Luna deduced that the scar was where he felt the most inferior.

It was because of that, Luna decided to take a bet.

Getting beaten up was much better than getting defiled.

It was just as Luna expected.

The man instantly frowned upon Luna’s words. He glared at her furiously.

“So what if I have a scar? Is this scar ugly? It’s not! ” Slap!

He smacked Luna brutally. “Stupid b*tch! How dare you laugh at me! ”

A slap was not good enough for him, so he slapped her once more. Luna could taste blood in her mouth.

She bit her lip. Blood started seeping through the cracks of her lips. With her miserable face, she was beautiful and sultry, yet that man could no longer see her beauty. He only had rage on his mind; the rage from being despised and looked down upon!

“What use is there looking so pretty? You have a vicious heart. You should be beaten to death! “

Then, he swung his hand down on Luna again. This time, before his face could land, a piercing police siren blared out outside the warehouse. Along with the sound of sirens, there was the sound of footsteps and the shouting of police officers.

“To the people inside: you have been surrounded! I urge you to surrender quickly! If not, we’ll force our way in! Let the hostage go!”

The man who was about to slap Luna paused for a while. He wanted to say something when there was a red dot in the middle of his brows. He stiffened.

The red dot...was the red pointer from a sniper!

Together with the commotion outside, the man instantly sweated profusely.

He slowly stood up with both his hands up in the air, surrendering. The red dot remained on his forehead.

The men in black were frightened almost half to death.

The man bit his lip and asked in a suppressed tone, “Is there a back door here?”

“Y—Yes, yes! “ The men in black immediately nodded. “Should we...run?”

“Duh! “

The man in the mask bit his lip as he slowly moved toward the back door. When he was by the door, he quickly found something to block him, then he ran straight for the door.

Slam!

The moment he escaped through the back door, a loud gunshot rang out behind him.

He was so frightened he almost peed his pants. He did not even dare to turn around as he frantically fled the scene with the other men in black.

Luna, who was tied up, leaned against the wall alone. She looked at the main door in confusion.

She saw the red dot a moment ago, and she also heard the gunshot. However, where was the gun?

Where was the bullet?

Also...the siren, sounds of footsteps, and the police warning had been blaring out for a very long time. Why did no one enter?

As she was in a state of confusion, the door to the warehouse opened.

Luna subconsciously turned to look, but she saw no one.

“Look down.” Suddenly, a clear, child’s voice rang out by the door.

Luna furrowed her brows and shifted her gaze downward. A child in a small black suit stood by the entrance. In his hand were a laser pointer and two small speakers.

He slowly approached her.

Luna’s eyes widened in surprise and delight. She instinctively yelled, “Neil!?”

The child paused for a while. He smiled and walked to Luna.

“Yes, it’s me.”

Neil walked toward Luna and slowly took his knife out. He started cutting the rope that bound her and chuckled a little.

“Although I like the name, I ‘m not called Neil. I ‘m Jake Landry. You should still call me Jake.”

“Okay then...Jake.”

Luna looked at Neil who was helping free her. Her emotions went from despair to surprise, to a complicated feeling.

He said that he was called Jake Landry, but he liked the name Neil. Neil was his original name.

She was seriously injured when she was pregnant, and that was why when her children were born, their health was not in good shape.

Nigel, Neil, and Nellie.

She researched those three names for a very long time. She also consulted many people. In the end, she settled on those three names.

Neil’s name was the first gift she gave to him, yet, at that moment, he could not remember his own identity anymore due to memory loss.

At that thought, Luna was heartbroken.

The moment her ropes were almost untied, Luna immediately pulled Neil tightly into her arms, not saying a word.

Neil’s eyes widened upon Luna’s sudden hug. He instinctively struggled, but no matter what, she was an adult and he was just a six-year-old child. He could not break free.

After struggling for a few moments, Neil did not want to hurt Luna, so he could only sigh and say depressingly while she hugged him, “Ma’am, it’s improper to have physical contact between men and women. Let me go.”

Luna closed her eyes, feeling the warmth from hugging her son whom she had not hugged in a very long time. She smiled.

“You’re just a child. How is it improper? Stop talking, and let me hug you for a while.”

Nigel helplessly reached out and patted Luna on her back, imitating an adult trying to comfort her. “It’s fine, it’s fine. I’ve already chased the bad guys away. Don’t be afraid.”

Luna’s body stiffened a little, then a feeling of warmth spread through her.

No wonder Neil stopped struggling. He thought that she was hugging him because she was scared half to death by those bandits.

Luna closed her eyes and sniffled. “Yes. Thank goodness you’re here.”

When she was almost defiled and bullied, she was indeed on the verge of a breakdown and in despair.

However, when Neil appeared, all of her fear and despair instantly vanished. Nothing made her happier than her long-lost son standing right in front of her, even rescuing her.

Since he already said that, Luna went with the flow, pretending to be aggrieved, hugging him tightly.

Neil used his few go-to phrases when he comforted women to comfort Luna non-stop.

After a while, Luna’s phone rang. Only then did Luna reluctantly let Neil go and answer the call.

“Hey, Anne.”

Suddenly released from Luna’s hold, Neil stood in the spot, not knowing how to react. After a while, he let out a breath and silently sat next to Luna, waiting for her to finish her call.

Sitting on the chair, he could still feel the remnants of the woman’s body warmth and aroma lingering on him.

It was a type of...motherly smell.

This was the first time a woman had hugged him. Although Aura was the one that gave birth to him and brought him up, she never hugged him once.

She never gave him an ounce of warmth.

He rested his chin on his hands, looking at this woman who was putting on her clothes while on a call. He inexplicably started to envy her son and daughter. They had a mother like her, so they must have been very happy, right?

Too bad.

How great it would be if she was his mother, too. Soon after, Luna finished her call.

Luna took a deep breath. She raised her gaze to look at Neil. "Do you know where are we? I have to look for my friend right now."

Neil nodded. "My car is just outside. I can send you over."

Then, he headed out while saying, "You're rushing to attend the engagement ceremony tonight, right?"

Luna paused for a while before catching up with him.

"Yes."

"I saw the news of your engagement. " Then, Neil stopped in his tracks and turned to look at Luna. " Can I come?"

Luna was stunned as she gazed at Neil in front of her. "You...want to come to the engagement ceremony? "

“Mmh.” Neil nodded. “I heard that you need an invitation to attend the ceremony, so can you give me an invitation? I want to just have a look around and eat.”

Luna was silent for a while. After seeing Neil, she was immensely delighted that she almost forgot she needed to ask him something.

“Jake.”

She walked to Neil and took an invitation out from her bag and passed it to him. “I welcome you to our engagement ceremony.”

No matter what, Neil was her’s and Joshua’s son.

Although their marriage was fake, when Neil returned to her, she did not hope that only Nigel and Nellie had this experience but Neil did not have it.

Also, Nigel and Nellie were going to the ceremony that night, too. It was time for Nigel and Nellie to meet Neil.

After passing him the invitation, Luna bent down and met his gaze. Her eyes were stern.

“A week ago, I saw you at the beach. What are you doing there that night?”

That night, all the signs pointed to Neil. When Joshua woke up, no matter how she asked, Joshua kept the incident that night a secret. He just would not tell anyone.

Neil looked at Luna. “Is what I did that night really important?”

Luna pursed her lips and said seriously, “Very important.”

Neil took a deep breath. “I don’t want to tell you. When it’s time for you to know, you’ll hear about it naturally. What I can tell you is that...”

His gaze was fixed at Luna. “I’m not a bad child.” Then, Neil strode out of the warehouse.

Looking at Neil’s back, Luna bit her lip. Of course, she believed that he was not a bad child. However, the truth was right in front of her. She had too many questions that needed answers.

“Come on. Aren’t you in a rush?” Neil urged from outside the warehouse.

Luna took a deep breath before chasing after him. Outside the warehouse was the same Bendley that Luna hitched a ride before the previous time.

When she entered the car, she intuitively looked at the driver’s seat. The driver was not Theo.

Luna paused for a while before turning to look at Neil. “You changed your driver?”

“Mmh.” Neil nodded. “Uncle Theo isn’t well. He can’t be my driver anymore, so we changed.”

“Where did he go?”

“Uncle Theo...” Neil was silent for a while. “Uncle Theo went back to his hometown.”

Luna’s heart instantly sank upon Neil’s reply.

Theo’s hometown was very far away. If Theo was truly free, that he was going to leave Banyan City, he would definitely contact her. He would not leave without saying goodbye.

Also, Nathan and Celeste left Banyan City not long ago. She even especially went to see them. Both of them were still in grief at Theo’s passing, not knowing that Theo was alive.

Thus...

Neil saying that Theo went back to his hometown was just an excuse. At that moment, Theo must be suffering.

If Theo was doing well, Neil would outright say where he was and what he was doing. He would not use the excuse of going back to his hometown as a cover.

At that thought, Luna's heart ached terribly. She turned and asked Neil, "Then...are you still in contact with him? Is he doing well?"

Neil paused for a while and looked at Luna confusedly. He did not understand why this woman would suddenly care for Uncle Theo. It was Uncle Theo that had a crush on her, but why was she suddenly concerned for him?

However, Neil still answered her question seriously, "Uncle Theo is still in contact with me. He's doing well. If you're thinking of him, I'll send him your regards the next time I contact him."

Upon hearing what Neil said, Luna's heart that was in suspense was finally relieved. She took a deep breath and smiled at Neil. "Thank you."

Neil paused for a while. He could not help but look at her. "Aren't you getting engaged tonight? Caring for two men...is inappropriate."

Luna was silent for a while, then she could not help but laugh out loud. Even if Neil lost his memory and became even colder and aloof than before, he still could not change his habit of nagging at her.

He did not look like a six-year-old child at all.

Soon, the car arrived at Cherry Snow Gowns where Anne and Luna agreed to meet.

From the distance, Luna noticed Anne waiting for her anxiously by the entrance. Luna turned and bade Neil goodbye. "This is it."

Neil nodded. He looked at the bruise on Luna's face caused by the masked man a moment ago. "Put some makeup on. You have to look beautiful tonight."

Luna smiled. "Hmm, I'll see you tonight."

"Hold on," Neil called after her just as Luna prepared to get out of the car.

Luna furrowed her brows and turned around.

"I..." Neil looked at her once more, and he hesitated. After a while, he took a deep breath and said, "I hope you remember that I'm not a bad child."

Then, Neil took a deep breath and closed the car door. The Bendley sped off.

Luna remained in the same spot. Her heart felt as if a piece of it was missing.

"Didn't you say you hailed a taxi over?" Seeing Luna standing there in a daze, Anne immediately rushed over and watched as the Bendley left. "This is the taxi you took? It's a little too luxurious, isn't it?"

Luna came to her senses. She helplessly rolled her eyes at Anne, then headed to the gown shop.

"Come on, we're late."

Anne was stunned before chasing after Luna. "Where did you go just now? Joshua called me previously. I didn't dare tell him that you're not there yet. I told him you were trying on gowns..."

An hour later, Luna's car finally arrived at the entrance of the engagement ceremony.

Anne helped lift the train of Luna's gown while walking forward.
