This Time, I Will Get My Divorce, Mr Chapter 571 - 572

Chapter 571 Bizarre Death

She didn't even know when she started to have a crush on Toby again; she remembered swearing to herself that she would never fall in love with him ever again, yet her feelings got the better of her once more.

Thus, Sonia couldn't help but wonder whether she was destined to be with Toby for the rest of her life. At that thought, she bit her lips with a mixture of complicated feelings surging through her.

Then, she suddenly began to understand why she would care about him so much as well as the reason behind all the other emotions that she had experienced in relation to him. I felt happy whenever he showed his concern; I felt anxious when I knew he was injured and it makes me jealous whenever I see him talking to another woman. Is it all because... I love him?

Sonia's hands started to tremble a moment later as she buried her head in her hands. Deep down in her heart, she couldn't stop thinking when her feelings for Toby had returned.

Soon enough, her mind was flooded with countless bits and pieces of memories that they shared until her mind was clear of them and she found herself reflecting on them. I guess I know when I fell in love with Toby again.

It was when Declan had kidnapped Sonia that she started to develop a crush on Toby. Toby had laid his life on the line to rescue her and even fell off the cliff with her at one point; this was when he earned an extremely special place in her heart. After all, he had disregarded his own life and jumped off the cliff just to save her, which slowly turned her gratitude and admiration for him into affection.

Ever since that incident, Sonia's attitude toward Toby changed. She didn't even show any dislike about meeting him while treating him with less indifference than ever before. Furthermore, he had also saved her in a few other incidents after the kidnapping, which was why she had easily fallen in love with him. Well, he was the man I used to love back then, so falling in love with him isn't hard at all, or maybe... he has always been in my heart all this time. As Sonia continued to dwell on her bewilderment, the aura around her suddenly became gloomy.

On the other hand, Nancy, who noticed Sonia's reaction, was concerned. "Sonia, are you alright—"

Before she could finish her sentence, she was interrupted by Toby coming out of the kitchen.

When Toby saw Sonia keeping her head down, he knew that something was wrong and quickly approached her, whereupon he placed his hand on her shoulder.

In that instant, Sonia's body stiffened as she looked back and saw Toby's hand on her shoulder. She pushed his hand off her in panic and shifted her gaze to Nancy before changing the subject. "By the way, Nancy, what brings you here today?"

For some reason, Sonia didn't know how to face Toby because she couldn't accept the fact that she had fallen in love with him again. Perhaps it's only after accepting the fact that I'm in love with him that I can face him without holding back. By then, maybe I'll be able to decide whether I'm going to be with him, but now... I don't think I can do it.

In the meantime, his eyes darkened when he saw her sudden change of attitude, as if she was withdrawing from him like he was some kind of monster. Then, he pursed his lips and asked, "What's wrong with you, Sonia?"

"Oh, nothing is wrong with me. I'm alright," she answered in a trembling voice while she lowered her gaze once more.

Toby stretched out with his arm and lifted her chin to make her look into his eyes. "Look at me and answer my question. What's wrong with you?" Why has she turned into a different person? I had merely gone off to wash the bowl and deal with the rest of the hangover soup. What exactly have I done to deserve this kind of attitude from her?

When he lifted her chin up for the second time, Sonia's gaze finally met his. When she saw the concern and anxiety in his gaze, she puckered her lips like she wanted to say something.

However, she closed her mouth in the end and moved his hand away. After that, she looked away and reacted with a strangely ambiguous expression. "I'm fine, so stop asking me what's wrong."

Meanwhile, in response, Toby furrowed his eyebrows and clearly expressed dissatisfaction with Sonia's answer. As he didn't want to force her hand into spilling the beans, he turned his attention to Nancy, who was standing aside.

Although his reaction had caught Nancy by surprise, she only waved her hand in Sonia's direction once again. It was as if Nancy implied that she wasn't in the position to say anything if Sonia was unwilling to reveal what the matter was. Therefore, he only squinted while silently pursing his lips in an unfathomable manner.

"Nancy, you haven't answered me why you're here." When Sonia sensed the intense atmosphere, she took a deep breath and forced a smile as she repeated her earlier question.

After she noticed Toby's glacial look, Nancy also knew that it was time for her to change the subject and the mood of the vibe. Thus, she faked a cough and replied, "Well, like I had mentioned before, I came to thank you both, but I also have something important that I want to tell you." Her expression became solemn when she mentioned her purpose of visiting Sonia and Toby.

The moment Sonia witnessed Nancy's look, she knew what she was about to hear was important and even she was becoming serious. Toby also decided to sit next to Sonia instead of standing behind her in his curiosity to hear what Nancy was about to reveal.

Soon, Sonia gazed at Nancy and urged, "Please tell us what it is, Nancy."

Nancy nodded in response. "Alright, I'll tell you guys now. However, before I proceed, I want you to be mentally ready with what you're going to hear."

"Alright." Sonia responded with an affirmative hum.

Nancy closed her eyes and took a moment to organize her thoughts. Then, she began, "Didn't I tell you that I was aware of Will's affair a long time ago? Although I knew that his mistress' name was Jessica, I had no idea that she was related to you at all, Sonia. Even so, I never bothered to learn more about her because I didn't want to waste my time and energy on learning about a lady whom my husband was cheating on me with. Subsequently, Mr. Fuller mentioned Jessica when he spoke to Will's father. Will's father later visited my house and had a conversation with my dad. It was only then when I finally discovered that Jessica is your sister, but at the same time, that also reminded me of something I heard a few months ago."

A surprised Sonia turned her head to look at the man sitting beside her. Since when did he talk to Nancy's father-in-law about Jessica? Why did it even occur to him to talk about Jessica in the first place?

Toby could seemingly guess what Sonia thought as he raised his glass of water and took a sip of it. "I thought you said you didn't want Jessica to be someone's mistress. Now that the Lazuli Family has abandoned her, she won't be a mistress anymore. That was the reason why I spoke to Will's father about Jessica."

"Oh wow! Thank you so much!" She was amused yet a little annoyed after hearing his explanation. Although she didn't like the fact that he took the liberty to proceed with his plan without her consent, she couldn't deny that his straightforward method had been effective.

"Don't mention it." Toby's lips curled upward and he looked at Nancy. "Please continue. What else did you learn?"

Nancy then gazed at Sonia. "A few months ago, I ran into Jessica at a mall when I was shopping with my besties there. At that time, she happened to be on a call and didn't notice my presence, so I hid in a corner and eavesdropped. Then, I heard something that shocked me to my core. She said she had no qualms about killing her half-sister just like how she had done so with her father."

"What did you just say?! You mean...?" Sonia jumped as she trembled uncontrollably from head to toe with a pale face while asking in a shaky voice, "Did y-you just say... you heard that it was Jessica who orchestrated my father's death?"

Toby's expression also changed as his eyes widened in horror. I thought Henry committed suicide, didn't he? When he took his own life, Jessica ran away with all the money, so what does all this have to do with her?

"Yes, I did." Nancy firmly nodded her head. "I'm sure I heard something like this because my heart skipped a beat when she nearly discovered my presence. Jessica said both she and her mother had drugged her father. The poison that they used on him had resulted in the deterioration of his physical and mental health as time went by. Thus, when her father had a mental breakdown, all they did was gently nudge him by coaxing him to take his own life. That was how both of them were able to get away with their crime. Therefore, she was actually calling to thank the person who gave her drug that day.”

Chapter 572 It's Titus

Upon hearing Nancy's words, Sonia felt as if the whole world was spinning underneath her while there was buzzing in her head. Then, she facepalmed and staggered on her feet as she nearly collapsed onto the ground.

The moment Toby saw Sonia's reaction, he quickly stood up and pulled her into his arms so that she could rest on his chest. “Watch out.”

“I'm fine.” Sonia shook her head while answering with a hoarse voice. After all, she didn't think there was more to her father's suicide because she had always thought it was due to the devastation from Paradigm Co.'s impending bankruptcy and the betrayal of Jessica and her mother running away with his money. Therefore, when Nancy told Sonia that her father killed himself because Jessica and Sandra had drugged him and coaxed him to take his own life, Sonia struggled to accept the harsh truth. No! How is this possible?!

“Nancy, are you telling me the truth? You aren't lying, are you?” Sonia freed herself from Toby's arms and walked closer to Nancy, desperately seizing Nancy's hands while waiting for an answer. Deep down in her heart, she wished Nancy was merely pulling her leg or telling a lie.

In the meantime, Nancy saw through what was on Sonia's mind and sympathetically nodded. “I'm sorry, Sonia, but what I just said is the truth. I'm not lying at all. When I first heard this, I was just as shocked as you are right now. At that moment, I couldn't help but wonder why anyone as evil as Jessica and her mother would ever exist in this world, as if patricide or killing one's own husband was nothing wrong. However, I wasn't aware of the relationship between you and Jessica until I learned yesterday that she is your half-sister. It was then that I realized she could be the one who drugged your dad and made him end his life, so I quickly came over to tell you the truth.”

When Sonia heard Nancy’s explanation, she knew that she could no longer fool herself by believing that what she heard was all a lie. Thus, all energy seemed to have been zapped from her and she collapsed onto the couch with dazed eyes on her pale face, feeling as if her body had just turned cold.

“Sonia.” Toby walked closer to her and called out to her in concern.

Sonia responded by looking at him for a few moments before she responded, “Jessica... How could she do that?! Where did she have the guts to drug our father and make him kill himself?! How could she have committed patricide even if Dad had never treated her well?! That was her father!”

Deep down in her heart, she reckoned that their father was never once mean to Jessica. Instead, it was Jessica’s rebelliousness that resulted in Henry often giving her a piece of his mind, but even so, Sonia believed that he still loved Jessica. That was the reason why she couldn’t accept what her half-sister had done.

Then, there was Sandra. Sonia condemned her in her heart and wondered what Henry had done to deserve a horrible death at his own wife and daughter’s hands. Did Dad ever treat both of them unfairly? Nope. Did he ever deny them their pocket money? No! He allowed them to spend as much as they wanted. Even when Paradigm Co. was in trouble, he never deactivated their bank cards, so why would they want to kill him? The more Sonia dwelled on those thoughts, the more she shivered with fear. In the end, she couldn’t suppress her emotions and ended up bursting into tears.

Meanwhile, Toby gently rubbed the back of her head and cuddled her in his arms while he spoke in a deep voice, “Cry all you want because after this, you’re going to avenge your father’s death, so you need to be strong and tough.”

She cried even louder when she heard that, her body stiffening from head to toe. Then, he gently patted her back while gazing at Nancy. “You said Jessica was talking on the phone with the person who supplied her the drug, right? Did you hear who it was?”

As soon as Sonia heard Toby’s question, she took a deep breath and tried to calm herself. After that, she freed herself from his arms and looked at Nancy too. Nonetheless, Nancy apologetically shook her head and replied, "Nope, Jessica didn't address the person on the other side of the phone call, but she only mentioned some name that had the word 'Gray'."

"Titus Gray," Sonia replied as she bit her lips.

"What makes you so sure?" Toby looked at Sonia in bewilderment.

A confident Sonia nodded. "The reason why Paradigm Co. landed into trouble six years ago was because Titus had set my father up. Back then, there was a piece of land that my father wanted to acquire, but Titus somehow found out about it. So, he connected my dad to his own friend, who then informed Titus that there was a decent piece of land in Easton City."

"Easton City?" Toby squinted. "I remember that was where the catacombs were subsequently discovered and exhumed from. Am I right?"

She replied with an affirmative hum. "Yes, Titus was aware that the place had catacombs beneath the ground, which he used to plot against Paradigm Co. and my father. Relying on his faith in Titus' friend, my father trusted every word that the man said without a question. As a result, he fell into their trap and spent all the Paradigm Co. assets to bid for the land. If that land had been decent indeed, it would have helped to improve the business in Paradigm Co., but sadly, it wasn't." She clenched her fists and added in a high-pitched voice, "A month after the exploitation and development of the land had begun, the construction team discovered catacombs beneath the ground, which subsequently drew the attention from the relevant authorities. After an investigation, the artifacts found were deemed to be extremely valuable for archeological studies, so the government decided to seize the land but only compensated Paradigm Co. with ten percent of the initial acquisition price!"

"And since it wasn't possible to retrieve the rest of the capital, Paradigm Co. was soon doomed into bankruptcy." Toby continued the story.

Sonia then gulped and nodded. "That was exactly what Titus wanted. Right after the catacombs were discovered, he visited us and gloated at my father while also admitting that it was his plan to set my father up. Besides that, Titus also said he wouldn't stop until our family fell apart, which would make sense to say that he abetted Jessica and Sandra to drug my father and get him killed!"

"That's highly possible." Toby stroked his chin and continued with his speech in a deep voice. "Nevertheless, there is nothing you can do at the moment until you discover evidence that can prove that Titus was the mastermind."

"What about Jessica?" She gazed at him. "Since she and her mother were the ones who drugged my father, I bet Jessica would know who provided her with the drug, so let's just capture her."

"Well, you have a point there, but I'm afraid that Jessica might not even know who she was in touch with. What if the person she was in contact with was merely one of Titus' men? Because if that was the case, we still can't testify against him either." Toby pointed out a theory that didn't sit right with Sonia.

"I don't care. I have to try." Sonia kept her head down and took a deep breath while looking at Nancy. "Nancy, do you know where the Lazuli Family has taken Jessica to?"

"I'll have to ask Mr. Lazuli first," Nancy answered shortly before something else crossed her mind. "You'll probably have to wait until the afternoon, though, because he will likely be having an important meeting with my father at this moment. Thus, I think they won't be reachable anytime soon."

"It's okay. Once you are in touch with Mr. Lazuli, please ask him for me." A grateful Sonia nodded.

Soon, Nancy excused herself and made a move, which left only Toby and Sonia in the living room. Then, Sonia sat there with her head lowered as she still tried to overcome the emotional devastation. After all, what Nancy had just told her was simply beyond shocking and heartbreaking. Meanwhile, he only sat silently beside Sonia like a guardian angel watching over her.

A few moments later, Sonia wiped her face and said, "Did you know? I actually noticed something wrong with my father six years ago, but I didn't pay much attention to it."

"What are you trying to suggest?" Toby asked while passing her a glass of water.

When she took the glass of water, she let out a long sigh before she answered, "A month before my father took his life, he seemed to be so mentally ill that he became forgetful, temperamental and absent-minded."
