

Time Travel to Become Your Sweetheart Chapter 14

Jane was shocked!

“Why do you want a divorce?”

She knew that William wouldn't say anything good since he didn't want Dayton in the room. However, she did not expect that William would ask for a divorce.

“Jane, it's you who want a divorce. I'm just granting your wish.”

William took a step back, flashing her a look with disgust.

“I....”

Jane lowered her head, trying to recall what had happened. Then, she remembered that the female lead and William had argued about something two months ago. She didn't remember why. Anyway, the female lead asked for a divorce while being angry.

William hadn't said anything. It turned out that he also wanted a divorce.

Mr. William, the president of the Duncan Group, was mysterious, handsome and rich. And he was only thirty years old, the age when a man was most attractive.

After the divorce, William would be an eligible bachelor. Countless women such as business ladies, female stars and young models would like to throw themselves at him.

“Darling, I don't want to get divorced!”

The person who kidnapped her had been arrested, but the one behind the scenes hadn't.

At the crucial moment, she didn't want to leave William, who could protect her. Or, she could die!

For the sake of her life, Jane wouldn't choose to divorce. She had to stay no matter what she had to do.

Therefore, with red eyes, she sobbed, “Darling, I think we can save our marriage for our son!”

Looking at the crying woman with cold eyes, William felt more disgusted. He had told her that he would make the greatest concession in terms of property. What else did she want?

They could divorce and stop contacting each other. William wouldn't keep her from pursuing true love. However, he didn't understand why Jane cried or mentioned Dayton. She never showed her concerns for Dayton.

"Jane, don't push your luck!"

William ran out of patience with her. Not mentioning the adulterer was the last thing he could do to show respect.

"William!"

Jane wiped away her tears. She felt ashamed, yet she had to suppress the feeling. Then, she looked up, getting up the courage and staring at William, "Darling, I know that I've made a lot of mistakes in this marriage. But during the time I was kidnapped, I realized that the only person I love was you!"

At that time, the only person she thought about and waited for was William.

"Because Randy won't save you."

William's words were like ten thousand years of ice that could freeze Jane.

He just called Jane out, and Jane felt more embarrassed.

Randy was a fresh-faced young man, who had quite a few fans. And he was Jane's idol.

As Mrs. Duncan, she used her status to look for resources for Randy. In return, Randy also showed respect and met her several times, but he didn't want to get close with her.

He was cold. Just two months ago, he stopped being cold and distant. Instead, he always contacted Jane to express his feelings. Jane couldn't refuse him, because she also liked him.

The day she was kidnapped was also the day when they agreed to meet.

Because Randy was a star who had many fans, it would cause a stir whenever he showed up in a crowded place. So, they chose to meet at a remote park.

Jane went there with delight. She also felt guilty, so she didn't bring her assistant or bodyguard, giving the kidnapers a chance to take her away.
