Chapter 41 Jewelry Charity Banquet

“Mommy, are you in the car?”

Dayton looked at the video and asked.

“Yeah, Mommy may come home late today. Dayton, don’t wait for me and sleep first, okay?”

Jane softly coaxed her son and explained it to him.

A parent must not underestimate children. In fact, at the age of five or six, they knew many things.

The female lead had disappointed her son too many times, and Dayton did not feel safe. Once their trust was destroyed again, Dayton would probably seal himself.

“Alright.”

Dayton took out a picture, which he drew in the kindergarten today. The title was my daddy and mommy.

“Dayton, good job!”

Jane almost burst out laughing. In Dayton’s painting, she had a smile on her face, while William looked serious. She could feel his coldness from the picture.

That was the impression he left on his son!

Jane had always wanted to talk to William. At least she didn’t agree with his educational method.

Did his son have to grow up in a lonely environment to become strong?

Families with love could also nurture outstanding children, and there would be no personality flaws.

"Dayton, your daddy is by my side."

Jane pushed her foot forward and held William's arm with one hand. She leaned her head slightly and made an intimate posture.

The screen was exactly big enough for the two of them.

"Daddy, don't bully Mommy."

Dayton said seriously to his father. "My teacher said that boys should not bully girls, otherwise they would look very bad."

"..."

"Daddy, don't let Mommy drink. Take Mommy home early."

"It's been a long time since you came home. The teacher said that a man who didn't come home wasn't a good man." Dayton said to Daddy through the screen.

The veins on William's forehead twitched as he gritted his teeth and said. "What else did your teacher say?"

The teacher in the kindergarten spoke nonsense. William considered changing the kindergarten for his son.

"Teacher also said..."

The teacher said so much that Dayton couldn't remember them for a while.

"Even Dayton's teacher knew the truth, but you didn't?"

Colin was taking a walk when he saw Dayton talking to the couple. He quickly grabbed the phone and pointed at William. "Take Jane back safely tonight!"

Colin never listened to rebuttal when he spoke.

William was silent. Sure enough, Jane had such an idea. Otherwise, she would have always been an invisible person. Why did she suddenly show up?

Jane hung up the phone and wanted to talk to William about her son's education. The car had already entered the courtyard of the West Villa.

Today's jewelry charity dinner was grand in scale. Almost all of the politicians, business elites, and influential figures from City J were present.

As soon as Jane entered the hall, she was attracted by the young ladies and madams wearing various evening gowns. They gathered together, attracting people's attention.

William held Jane in his arms as he showed up. In an instant, the chaotic hall was temporarily quiet.

"Darling, you go ahead."

Someone nodded at Jane, and Jane smiled calmly.

Actually, she didn't know him at all. The female lead's memories were blurry, so she probably didn't have much interaction with him and wasn't familiar with him.

"Jane, what brings you here?"

As soon as Jane entered, she was focused by a woman in a white off-the-shoulder evening gown. The woman immediately greeted her warmly.

"The southeast wind."

Jane replied indifferently.

This person was one of the acquaintances of the female lead, Ada, who had always come up with a bad idea.

Ada liked to show her distinctiveness and never addressed Jane as Mrs. Duncan.

Chapter 42 Show off Their Affection

Ada hadn't seen Jane for a while and realized that her appearance and temperament had changed drastically. She was much more beautiful than before, and the flames of jealousy in her heart burned brightly.

It was said that the Greens and the Duncans was a business marriage, but as Jane's friend, she knew the truth.

Jane was nothing. She was stupid and useless. She was just the adopted daughter of the Duncans. In ancient times, she was just a lowly child bride.

Ada, a mistress, married a potbellied boss, but she was not satisfied at all.

Every night she lay on the bed, beside her was a potbellied man. She was disgusted when he touched her!

Why was Jane able to be Mrs. Duncan, and she had to force a smile to an old man?

"The southeast wind?"

Facing Jane's transformation, Ada couldn't react for a moment.

"That's right. Didn't you read the weather forecast when you went out?"

Jane took a glass of wine from the waiter and said indifferently. "According to the weather forecast, the southeast wind is three to four degrees at night. Of course the southeast wind brought me here."

Ada smiled awkwardly.

"I didn't see you for a few days, and you start telling jokes."

"Have a good time."

Jane didn't want to talk to Ada, but she didn't want her to notice something.

Ada was a smart person, and she liked to cause trouble secretly, so she had no choice but to guard against her.

"Jane, why are you here with Mr. William?"

The couple had never showed up together on such an occasion, so when they entered the hall together, everyone was so shocked that the scene froze.

"I wanted to relax, so William brought me here."

Jane smiled. She didn't know who the mastermind behind the kidnapping was yet. Anyone the female lead came into contact with was possible.

Under such circumstances, she had to rely on William. Ada was gossipy. Jane said that because she wanted to spread the news through Ada.

"Really?"

Ada's expression changed, but quickly returned to normal. In the afternoon, she learned from Kylie's call that William's relationship with Jane had suddenly improved and asked her what was going on.

Wasn't it strange for someone who hadn't been together for six years to suddenly become intimate?

Ada did not believe Kylie's words, but now, she saw it with her own eyes.

Mr. William rarely attended an event throughout the year. This was an important occasion, and he brought Jane with him.

"Jane, I've missed you. You haven't contacted me recently. It was said that you've been kidnapped. Is that true?"

Ada held Jane's arm and couldn't help but ask what she wanted to ask the most.

A while ago, the news was all over the place. She had been waiting for Jane to call her. However, Jane didn't call her at all. Ada was a little suspicious.

"You believe the news on the Internet. Where is your brain?"

Jane rolled her eyes at Ada. "The news also said that my husband is dating Kylie. God, I don't know who Kylie was dating, but why should my husband take the blame?"

"..."

Jane stood in the corner and saw people walking towards William. He nodded indifferently and looked in Jane's direction through the crowd.

"Darling!"

Jane raised her glass and smiled.

William was caught off guard, very annoyed. He just wanted to see if this woman was playing tricks again and was caught by her to show the affection!

Seeing the interaction between them, Ada tightened her grip on the glass.

Chapter 43 An Episode

Before the jewelry charity dinner, beautiful songs echoed in the magnificent hall. Those who participated in the party smiled and greeted others.

Since the female lead didn't like this kind of party, she had attended charity dinners no more than three times.

"Jane, let's have a talk?"

Ada pointed to a place far away from the crowd and held Jane's hand, "I'm very surprised that you are here. You said that there are full of hypocritical people at these parties."

Jane's eyelids trembled. Indeed, that was what the female lead had said.

At such a charity dinner, one had to donate money. The female lead was bad at investing and had suffered losses, so she was unwilling to do charity.

Jane wondered why the female lead was this petty and vain. She grew up in the Duncans and married William, she was supposed to be generous and elegant.

Of course, it was probably because the author didn't like the character. Thus, the female lead was a fool.

"You'd better address me as Mrs. Duncan. After all, we're not that familiar."

Jane pulled her hand back and said coldly. She behaved differently on purpose to surprise Ada.

Ada was suspicious. It would take her a few days to wonder what had happened from Jane's attitude.

Jane was delighted to cause trouble for Ada.

As she expected, Ada was shocked at her sudden change.

Over the past half month, Ada deliberately ignored Jane. She learned from Kylie that Randy had already planned to meet Jane.

Ada was sure that Jane would ask her for help since Jane believed her.

Once the Duncans knew Jane cheated on William, they wouldn't let Ada off easily either. That was why Ada had been out of touch with Jane these days and pretended that she didn't know anything. She tried to pass the buck.

In the corner, the woman who had been paying attention to Jane exchanged looks with Kylie. Then, she stood up and walked over with a glass of wine in her hand.

When the woman walked past Jane, she pretended to trip over a decoration and lose balance. The glass in her hand fell to the ground and the wine was spilled on Jane's shoes.

"Mrs. Duncan, I'm sorry. I'll clean it for you?"

The woman was a recently popular celebrity. She attended the party with someone else.

She sat on the ground and stared at Jane in horror, with her face full of panic.

What happened here had attracted the attention of many people.

Jane looked down and saw her shoes and trousers being stained with wine. She needed to go to the bathroom.

The woman in front of her looked a little familiar, but Jane failed to recognize her. Jane had face blindness and thought those people on TV looked alike.

"Don't mention it."

Since the woman sat on the ground affectedly, it was obvious that she did so on purpose. But with so many people looking over, Jane had no way but to hold back her anger.

Where there were women, there were conflicts. Before the party started, they began to play dirty tricks.

While the others paid close attention to what had happened, William remained calm as he sat in a corner and lost in thought. All those who came to him for a chat failed.

Normally, he shouldn't bring Jane, who would embarrass him, to the party. However, at last he brought her here and helped her clean up the mess.

'Forget it. In any case, it won't be long before I divorce her. This is a compensation to her.'

Jane didn't know that William was in a dilemma, and it had something to do with her. She asked the waiter where the bathroom was and hurriedly went to the second floor.

There were only ten minutes left before the party began.

Chapter 44 The Richest Toad

“Did you hear the rumor about Kylie? It is reported that she is in relationship with the president of the Duncan Group.”

In the bathroom, there were two people whispering about the hottest gossip.

The rumor went round, but Kylie did not deny. In the entertainment industry, it meant that she tacitly approved the rumor.

“Kylie is not a fool. Of course, she won’t deny, right? As the Duncans is a wealthy family, Kylie wishes to marry into the family. But I heard that Mr. William is fatty. His belly is as big as a pregnant woman’s and his face is covered with spots. How could Kylie put up with him?”

“Are you stupid? Mr. William is wealthy and powerful. Even though he is a toad, he is the richest one!”

After finishing speaking, they let out another burst of chuckle.

Jane looked at the mirror in the bathroom and tried to fix her makeup. She could hardly control herself from laughing out and failed to reapply lipstick. William was fatty? He had a big tummy and a face full of spots? Where did these rumors come from?

A rich toad? That was a good description.

Jane couldn’t help but begin to imagine that there was a toad with several gold watches jumping on the ground.

William was mysterious. Every time he attended a party, he would keep a low profile. Apart from those cooperative partners, the participants didn’t know him. No wonder there were such ridiculous rumors about him.

When Jane finished her makeup and was about to go downstairs, the door to the room in the corridor opened. Someone reached out and pulled Jane into the room.

Who exactly was it?

It was dark, and Jane tried to give the person a good kicking. Seeing her behavior, the person hurriedly took several steps backward and whispered, “It’s me!”

“You?”

Randy?

Jane calmed herself down and stared at the man in front of her. In a cream-white suit, he was perfectly groomed. He looked mature and was different from when he was on TV. With his eyes lit up, he stared at Jane.

“Darling, I haven’t contacted you for a while. Are you angry with me?”

When Randy saw Jane, he was dumbfounded and could hardly recognize her.

Jane probably suffered a lot these days. She thinned down a lot and was no longer aggressive. In fact, Randy found her much more attractive now.

“I’m so busy that I don’t have time to see you. I really didn’t do it on purpose.”

With a sorrowful expression, Randy apologized in a low voice. As a celebrity, he had a lot of fans, who didn’t want him to have a girlfriend. Once there was a rumor about him, they probably would no longer like him.

His agent was extremely strict. As soon as he finished filming, he was not allowed to go out.

He didn’t mean to stand Jane up that day in the park!

Randy looked sincere and cautious.

‘What a good actor! Go on!’

Jane thought. As a saying went, life was a drama, only good actors survived it. She finally realized the true meaning of it.

She didn’t expect Randy would be so bold and come to her under William’s nose.

If William found out, both of them had to suffer the consequences.

It was a grocery room on the second floor, with furniture piled up inside. It seemed that Randy knew here well.

“Are you mistaken about our relationship?”

Jane looked down at her watch. There were still five minutes left before the party.

“What do you mean?”

Randy stood up and walked to the window. Then, he said with blue eyes, "You're blaming me."

Jane's eyelids twitched unstoppably. No wonder Randy was a popular celebrity. Did he think he was shooting an idol drama? How could he say those words?

Jane had suspected that it was Randy and his elder sister's trick. They wanted William to catch her cheating on him.

However, it didn't make sense. Randy was not stupid. If their relationship was exposed in public, William wouldn't let Randy off easily. Unless he risked his career to help Kylie.

Evidently, Randy was not fool and he wouldn't sacrifice so much for Kylie. Thus, he came to Jane to find out what had happened to her.

After all, there were huge discrepancies between her and the female lead. Randy was suspicious of her.

Chapter 45 A Third Person in the Corner

"To put it bluntly, I didn't like you at first, Jane. We knew little about each other back then."

Randy took a deep breath and continued, "But after this period of time, I discover that you are different from others. You are the only one who treat me sincerely and wholeheartedly."

Randy forced himself to say these sweet words to Jane. Although he loathed Jane, he had to keep in touch with her and chat with her online.

And until now he found it harder to talk with Jane face to face.

"Otherwise, why would I want to see you...."

Randy could hardly continue anymore and turned to look into the distance.

There was a maple forest not far away from the West Villa. As it was dark outside, the red maple leaves looked a little desolate under the dim yellow lights.

Randy was handsome and was good at performing. Hearing his affective words, every woman would be moved by him, apart from Jane.

Jane touched her heart and shook her head.

In fact, her heartbeat also quickened when she saw Randy's expression and heard his remarks. It was probably because of the female lead.

The female lead had done a lot for Randy. She was so greedy and vain, but she wanted to divorce William for Randy. It was obvious that she indeed loved Randy.

Unfortunately, it was just a trick of Randy and Kylie. As long as the female lead and William got divorced, Kylie could manage to marry William.

As Jane read the novel to kill time, she only paid attention to the story related to the female lead, who had the same name as her. As for other characters, she didn't read carefully.

She vaguely remembered that William's life didn't change much after Jane died. He still focused on work.

As Colin fell ill, he had no time to think about marrying others.

"Randy...."

Just as Jane turned around and tried to speak, she saw half a pair of high heels in the corner. She always had a good memory, and it was what Kylie wore.

It turned out that Kylie was in the room as well. As Jane expected, Randy and Kylie wouldn't give up easily.

"Randy, I'm upset now."

Jane's mind went blank. All of a sudden, she felt extremely bitter. She clenched her fists and tried her best to control herself.

It was she who lived in the novel now. She had to prevent herself from being affected by the female lead.

It perhaps was destiny that she replaced the female lead.

Randy was a time bomb that she had to solve. However, he was not an idiot, so she could not act rashly.

Or she would have to deal with Kylie and Randy's new conspiracy again.

Jane stopped talking and pretended to be angry. Then, she quickly left the room and went downstairs.

“Have you seen enough? Come out.”

After the door closed, Randy lit a cigarette and put on a mocking smile.

“I own you a favor.”

Kylie happily walked out from behind the sofa. In the Duncan’s, Jane dwarfed her. Therefore, Kylie couldn’t help but feel unease and wonder if Jane was not the same as before.

However, when Kylie hid behind the sofa, she saw Jane left with one hand in her chest. She could tell that Jane loved Randy deeply.

Jane was afraid of being discovered by William, so she hurriedly went out. What Kylie needed to do was to add fuel to the fire.

“Interesting. I thought Jane has changed a lot.”

There were still three minutes left before the party. Randy stubbed out the cigarette in his hand and walked out of the room with one hand in his pocket.

He was not on good terms with Kylie. They cooperated with each other only for their own benefits.

Once his relationship with Jane was exposed, he would most likely be kicked out of the entertainment industry, while Kylie would be able to take advantage of this opportunity to marry William.

Clearly, it was unfair. Did Kylie view him as a silly?

Kylie underestimated him. What Randy wanted was not just the resources in the entertainment industry.[1][1]

Chapter 46 Feel Strange

When Jane went downstairs, the entire hall was lit by only one light overhead the host.

All the guests attending the jewelry charity dinner had sat down. And Jane's seat was next to William's.

"I went to the bathroom."

When Jane found that she had to go to the first row and sit beside William, she couldn't help but tremble and feel scared.

She just went to see Randy. Even though she didn't mean to do so, she still felt a little guilty.

William looked ahead and didn't cast a glance at Jane.

She followed Randy and went to the second floor. It was obvious what she had done.

He didn't want to listen to her explanation. Since he brought her here, he had already known what she would do.

Jane used to refuse to attend parties with him. She came to the party today for Randy! Was she this anxious?

"Honey...."

Jane realized that she had been tricked again.

Although William did not go to the second floor, he would suspect that she had gone to Randy as it took her a long time before coming back. Moreover, Randy went downstairs not long after she reappeared.

Randy and Kylie were vicious. How dare them play tricks on her again and again!

Jane had to rely on William for her future life, so she didn't want him to misunderstand her. For those who tried to get her into trouble, she wouldn't let them go easily.

Sitting beside William, Jane could feel that he was angry. His eyes were cold.

While listening to the host, Jane tried hard to please William.

"Why did it take so long?"

William had intended to ignore Jane. But what Jane had done recently occurred to him. She not only pleased Colin, but also spent a lot of time accompanying Dayton.

And now both of them took Jane's side.

Although Jane had cheated on him, William had never thought about spreading it out. Instead, he would help her hide the truth.

It was not because he was afraid of losing face. Actually, he didn't value it at all. He was worried that Dayton would be laughed at if others knew his mother was skittish.

"Honey, how clever you are!"

Jane felt uneasy and was closer to William. Rather than letting him doubt her, it was better to be honest.

But she couldn't say that she went to Randy. Otherwise, she would fall into Kylie's trap.

William raised his eyebrows and glanced coldly at Jane.

"Honey, to be honest, I'm unhappy about your recent rumors."

Jane angrily pulled William by his arm and leaned her head against it.

In an instant, William's body was stiff. He probably wanted to shake off her hands, but it was not appropriate to be so rude in public. So, he had to resist the urge to do so.

Jane was delighted to make difficulties for him. Finally, it was his turn to feel upset!

Jane smiled and continued, "It is reported that you went out with Kylie, and Kylie tacitly approves it. Are they trying to destroy your reputation?"

As a celebrity, Kylie got used to spread gossips to increase her popularity. Except for William, Jane didn't care about whom she tried to make use of.

"So what?"

William turned around and looked at Jane seriously. He felt strange.

In fact, William didn't take those rumors seriously. A clean hand wanted no washing. If he tried to shrug off them, they would be more widespread.

He didn't care about them at all.

Thus, it would be a waste of time to argue with others about his rumors.

As his time was limited, he didn't want to worry about those trivial matters.

"That's why I went after Kylie."

Jane tilted her head and said with a complacent expression. It was an indisputable fact that Kylie appeared in the grocery room on the second floor. Even if William asked people to investigate, he wouldn't find her telling a lie.

Kylie wanted to eavesdrop and be behind the matter. However, Jane would never let her succeed.

Chapter 47 I Can't Afford to Offend You

William tried to recall what exactly had happened between him and Kylie, but he failed.

The Duncan Group had a lot of businesses overseas. He spent most of his time on working.

He seldom paid attention to those women who wanted to approach him.

Therefore, he didn't care about those rumors at all.

It was nonsense that he dated Kylie privately and was intimate with her.

The photos were taken in the Duncan Group's parking lot, a private area. As Kylie was an ambassador for one of the group's brands, she pulled some strings and made her way there.

William noticed that there were paparazzi, but he did not stop them.

Apart from his work and family, he paid little attention to other things.

"As long as we don't get divorced, you don't care about my affairs. Did you say that? Why do you make trouble for Kylie now?"

William was domineering. Although he said in a low voice, Jane could hear his words clearly.

She shrank her neck and was scared again.

As William was charming, she could hardly stop herself from being attracted by him.

"I heard that Mr. William is fatty. His belly is as big as a pregnant woman's and his face is covered with spots. How could Kylie put up with him?"

What she had heard in the bathroom echoed in Jane's ears.

She closed her eyes for a while. Then, she opened her eyes and felt less nervous after considering William as a rich toad that wore three golden watches.

"Honey, I'm a woman. I'm good at duplicity."

Everyone, whether men or women, hated their spouses to betray them.

Ada's husband was indeed ugly and frequently cheated on her. No wonder Ada was keen on bothering Jane. It turned out that she lived such an unhappy life.

"Really?"

William nodded in agreement and asked word by word, "Does that mean you lie to me when saying you love me?"

Being stared at by him, Jane felt upset. How could she walk into the trap herself?

"Love is not delivered by words but by behavior."

Jane explained, "Rather than saying those sweet words to you, I want to show you my affection."

She had to ride on William's coattails.

Jane blinked, trying her best to look innocent and sincere.

Under the dim light, Jane looked as if her face was gilded. She sat immobile and seemed to be extremely uneasy.

She looked down, and her eyelashes cast a shadow on her face. It was the first time that William had seen her being so quiet.

He had paid little attention to her in the past. In fact, he spent much more time getting alone with her recently than before.

William narrowed his eyes and wondered why Jane seemingly had changed a lot. But he was calm and was not easy to be taken in.

“Love is delivered by behavior.”

The next second, William froze. He shot daggers at Jane, as if he wanted to kill her.

“So, that’s how you persuaded Master Duncan to keep us indoors together? Is that the reason why you take advantage of me?”

William said in an exceptionally cold voice.

Jane staggered and wanted to hide herself.

She had just walked into the trap of William, and now she asked for trouble herself.

It was Colin who came up with such a bad idea. However, she took the initiative to take the responsibility. How fool she was!

Jane pouted angrily, but she could do nothing! She couldn’t afford to annoy William!

Since Jane remained silent, William cast a glance at her. She was so furious that her chest rose and fell and her face looked alive.

William put on a smile and looked ahead.

Chapter 48 A Target of Public Criticism

Jane couldn’t help but roll her eyes at William after having a quarrel with him and failing again. However, it seemed that he was no longer angry.

Jane found it unbelievable. It turned out that William was so childish that he would feel happy because of defeating her....

“Distinguished guests, I’m sorry. We have to change the schedule since there are something wrong with the exhibits tonight.”

The host held the microphone, and his smile froze on his lips.

He couldn't afford to offend anyone of the guests present. What exactly had happened? All the guests had sat down. Wasn't it too late to say something went wrong?

"It doesn't matter. We come here not for dinner but for charity."

After the host finished speaking, a woman stood up and helped him remove the embarrassment.

The auction was delayed because of the exhibits, but the charity party had to continue.

"Mrs. Cart, do you have any idea how to continue the charity dinner?"

Someone in the crowd asked.

Jane maintained silent and was a little disappointed. She had worked hard to ask William to bring her here, but she didn't even have the chance to see the exhibits. She couldn't get luckier than this!

"Mrs. Cart, how about we design our own jewels and ask others to produce them for us? This is more meaningful."

Ada said with a smile. Mrs. Cart came from a wealthy family, and she had been doing charity for decades. She was prestigious.

"Alright, that's good."

Mrs. Cart was satisfied with the proposal. By doing so, the jewelry charity dinner would be more interesting.

It would also be a design competition.

All of a sudden, those journalists who sat in the last row and were responsible for taking photos became excited.

They had thought that it was a boring party where people just donated. Surprisingly, something new came up. They were sure that what happened here would become trending tomorrow!

Jane had no interest in joining them, although she used to be a jewelry designer in her last life.

Now, Jane was in danger, and she was unable to help others. If she could live a good life in the future, she definitely would join them and do charity works.

"Mrs. Duncan, I heard that you like to collect jewels. You must have a good knowledge of jewelry. Why don't you join us?"

There were hundreds of people attending the party. So, not everyone could participate in the competition.

Jane didn't want to get involved, but it seemed that Kylie wanted to embarrass her.

Someone who knew Jane also said on purpose, "Mrs. Duncan, come and join us!"

As Jane came to the party with William, many people were jealous of her. They knew she was incompetent, so they tried to make difficulties for her. If Jane brought shame on the Duncans at the party, she probably wouldn't dare to pester William anymore.

"Mrs. Duncan likes jewelry very much. She will definitely be able to design a good jewelry and make a great contribution to the charity."

Given Ada had said so, Jane was unable to refuse.

If she refused, it would be more embarrassing.

"Mrs. Duncan, join us."

Mrs. Cart said. In fact, she didn't care about whether or not Jane participated in the competition. Her family was on good terms with the Duncans and had business with it.

Mrs. Cart didn't like Jane.

If it wasn't because of Colin disapproving, she would marry her daughter into the Duncans. In terms of both appearance and knowledge, Daisy Cart was not inferior to Jane. Besides, Daisy was well-spoken.

"That's good!"

Jane stood up and walked to the stage.

She finally realized that the female lead had been a target. Although they didn't dare to offend her blatantly, they took every chance to get her into trouble.

Was it because she was an orphan and helpless? Did they think she could only rely on William?

Given they put so much efforts to trouble her, she had to take this opportunity to beat them up! Or, they would never stop bullying her.

Time Travel to Become Your Sweetheart Chapter 49

/ Time Travel to Become Your Sweetheart

Chapter 49 Lend You My Work

There were twenty people participating in the game and standing on the stage. All of them had high social statuses, and Jane was second to none.

However, almost everyone present knew how incompetent Jane was. She could neither sing nor dance. She cared for nothing but having fun.

“Jane, are you alright?”

Beside Jane sat a young lady. In a dress, she looked pure. She was Daisy, the female lead’s classmate and Mrs. Cart’s only daughter. Besides, she was the only successor of the Cart Group.

“I have no alternative.”

Jane gave Daisy a cold look and nodded politely.

After being adopted by the Duncans, the female lead attended exclusive school and became Daisy’s classmate. Although the female lead could be considered as a Duncan, everyone thought that she was an orphan and would be abandoned again at any time. Unlike the female lead, Daisy was indeed a wealthy girl, and everyone was so envious of her.

The female lead knew clearly how her classmates talked about her behind her back. That was also the reason why she became selfish and self-abased.

Before Jane gained weight, Daisy was no match for her in appearance. Therefore, Daisy had been bullying her in the school. She even asked other classmates to isolate Jane by pretending to be wronged.

The female lead suffered school bullying, but she didn’t dare to tell Colin.

“You’re adopted by the Duncans. If they know you always make trouble at school, they probably will drive you away again. Aren’t you afraid?”

Ten years ago, Daisy drove the female lead into the corner and said to her with a smile.

"I'm telling them that you have two faces. You are not kind at all!"

The female lead had struggled and tried to resist. However, Daisy had taken advantage of her weakness. She was afraid of being abandoned once more the most. She was an orphan. How could she survive after leaving the Duncans?

"Do you think they will believe you or me?"

Daisy asked with an indifferent expression. She was a Cart and the successor of the Cart Group. She would be charge of the whole family, while Jane was just an orphan. How could Jane compete with her?

Not long after, Daisy went abroad and majored in design at a first-rate university overseas. The Cart Group was an international listed company that mainly managed jewelry. With many luxury and affordable luxury brands, the company was popular among rich ladies and white-collar employees.

The female lead had strong and complicated feelings toward Daisy. She was not only jealous of Daisy but also hated her.

Given she had replaced the female lead, Jane thought it was time to settle with Daisy and asked her to pay for what she had done. Moreover, Jane hated fake people like Daisy the most.

"Jane, what are you doing?"

Daisy gently pushed Jane, but she was distracted and secretly looked down the stage at the guests.

The man she had loved for more than ten years sat in the shadow.

William, the man she missed so much that she couldn't sleep at night!

She grew up with him. She went abroad to study and worked hard to be worthy of him. Daisy had never expected that William would marry Jane when she was out of the country!

Jane was incapable. How could she marry William?

Daisy was furious, but she held back her anger and pretended to care about Jane.

"How about I lend you my work...."

Daisy put it mildly. She in fact meant to ask Jane to plagiarize her work. In her mind, Jane was unable to work out a design, so Jane probably would be grateful to her.

At the very least, if Jane coped Daisy's work, she could avoid losing face at the party.

Daisy planned to help Jane and then make friends with her.

William was too low-key and was rarely seen in public. Even if the two families had business with each other, Daisy seldom met him.

Daisy had to make use of Jane to approach William.

Actually, it was she who suggested have a design competition at the party. She did so to draw William's attention.

Chapter 50 To Argue with Mrs. Cart

"Daisy, did you ask me to plagiarize?"

Jane suddenly raised her voice, attracting the attention of the people around her.

How dare Daisy play a trick on her? Besides Ada and Kylie, she was the third person who went after her today.

"No. We are doing charity. Even if my work is not as good as others', I can't cheat."

Jane declared herself and said seriously.

Daisy was no match for Jane in being calculating. Apart from William, Jane had never lost to others for now.

She'd better make it clear that she wouldn't cheat in advance. Otherwise, Daisy probably would slander her if she showed her great work.

Almost everyone saw the female lead as a fool. Just as Jane kept wondering how to convince others that she finished the design all on her own, Daisy appeared.

How helpful she was!

"You ... I didn't ask you to plagiarize. Jane, you misunderstood me."

Daisy was furious. What a fool Jane was! She would rather lose face than ask Daisy for help. How could she say it out loud?

"Miss Cart, you are as kind as ever!"

The young lady sitting beside Daisy suddenly interrupted.

Jane knew her as well. They were also classmates. Since her skin was dark, she was nicknamed Black Pearl.

Black Pearl's father had many coal mines and was an upstart. So, Daisy looked down on her.

In the school, Black Pearl liked a senior, who wholeheartedly chased after Daisy. Although Daisy didn't like him, she didn't refuse him either. She just played him, sometimes pretending to be abused and sometimes pretending to be pure.

Since then, Black Pearl had trouble with Daisy. As she was straightforward, whenever she got a chance, she would have a sharp tongue on Daisy.

Black Pearl had been looking down on Jane. But by contrast, she didn't like Daisy, who was hypocritical, more. And as the enemy of her enemy could be her friend, Black Pearl preferred to help Jane.

Daisy lowered her head and narrowed her eyes. She smiled and didn't say anything.

Obviously, Black Pearl was no match for her.

"Alright. Daisy was afraid that you would become a laughing stock."

As soon as she noticed that Daisy was bullied, Mrs. Cart looked sullen and said.

"What do you mean by saying that?"

Normally, Jane didn't dare to argue with Mrs. Cart. But she hated the people like Mrs. Cart the most and could hardly control herself anymore.

Given the Duncan Group ran a lot of businesses, she was not afraid of offending those women here.

"We come to the stage to help proceed with the party and do charity."

Jane said indifferently, "Whether my design is good or not, I make a contribution to charity."

When it came to appearance, knowledge, family and wealth, we were able to have relative superiority or inferiority among a group of people. But it was different when talking about doing charity.

Some people could only donate a little money. But they had scrimped and saved to help others. Those who mocked them neither knew it nor wanted to know it.

For the wealthy people, that was just a small amount of money. But for those who tried hard to help others, that was precious.

Doing charity was not about comparing. What should be valued was a true heart.

“I join you to design jewelry is only because I want to help others.”

After Jane finished speaking, she sat down again and started drawing.

After a while, a stormy applause broke out in the hall. Almost everyone was moved by Jane’s words.

Regardless of whether they had prejudices against Jane or not, they agreed with what Jane had said.

In fact, many guests were unhappy about being inferiors to others when attending the charity party. But they dreaded to speak out.

Although the Duncan Group was at the top of the industry, Mrs. Duncan was not arrogant at all. They couldn’t help but feel warm at her words.

William unconsciously clapped as well and did a double take. Even though he had been ignoring Jane over the past few years, he had to admit that she was attractive just now.

Did she come up with a new idea? It seemed that she had improved a lot in deceiving others. Including him, many people were taken by her.

William wondered if Jane was afraid of losing face and thus delivered such a speech. In this way, even if she made a fool of herself, no one would laugh at her.

Jane was cunning. According to her, whoever mocked her was not sincere when doing charity.
