

The Mans Decree Chapter 695

Chapter 695 Annoying Women

Josephine actually wished that Lizbeth could join her, and together they could be with Jared. The two of them were close friends, after all. They could even keep each other company when Jared was off on his trip.

Lizbeth stayed in the washroom for an entire hour before she left. Josephine's jaw dropped when she saw Lizbeth standing there. "Lizbeth, y-you've changed too. Quick, come check yourself out in the mirror."

Lizbeth hurried to the mirror upon hearing that. She jumped with excitement when she saw how smooth and beautiful her skin was.

Jared was staring instinctively as well. After taking the detoxification pill, Lizbeth exuded a different aura.

The two ladies standing side by side were equally beautiful, but their aura was completely different.

Josephine was like a graceful deity, whereas Lizbeth was like a goddess of war. Well, that made sense since the latter used to work for the Department of Justice.

Jared couldn't help thinking the dirty when he saw the two of them standing right in front of him.

Wow, if I have them both, I can hug them in each of my arms as I sleep at night. Oh my gosh, that would be fantastic!

Jared smiled like an idiot without realizing it. He was so deep in his fantasy that he didn't even notice Josephine and Lizbeth walking over.

The ladies turned to one another after they stared at that stupid smile. They shouted simultaneously.

Jared jumped in response. That was when he came around and saw that both Josephine and Lizbeth were staring at him with the strangest glow in their eyes. He sat back up on the couch right away.

“Jared, what were you smiling about earlier?” asked Lizbeth.

“N-Nothing in particular,” replied Jared awkwardly.

“I bet he’s fantasizing about having the two of us sleeping with him at night. That’s probably why he was smiling like an idiot.”

Josephine hit a bull’s eye. It was exactly what was going on in his mind.

“Oh, stop bullsh*tting. That was not what was on my mind,” lied Jared. He sprang up from the couch to head out. “You girls have dinner without me. I have some errands to run.”

He no longer had the guts to stay at home. Who knows? Those ladies might actually con me into something.

Jared had nothing to do after he left the mansion in Dragon Bay, so he invited Tommy out for a drink. He knew a lot of people in the city, but only drank with a handful of them.

Soon, Jared and Tommy met up in a bar. The place belonged to the Templar Regiment, so the employees greeted them warmly as soon as they showed up.

“Mr. Chance, you just had an intense battle against Xander, so why aren’t you resting at home? How come you are out for a drink?”

Tommy had gotten them a bottle of red wine and poured Jared a glass.

“I have two women at home. Both are annoying, so I came out to get some fresh air,” replied Jared.

He grinned in exasperation before downing his drinks.

“Ah, but that life is what most men crave, isn’t it?” said Tommy. He sipped some red wine as well.

“So, how are things between you and Phoenix?” asked Jared.

“Things are normal. At our age, we’re not looking for fun and excitement. We just want a partner in life. Still, we are happy we could both serve under you, Mr. Chance.”

Tommy had always appreciated Jared because the latter was the reason he became a Grandmaster. Without Jared’s help, it was likely Tommy would never reach that level.

“Well, I’m glad you realize you’re getting older. You should hurry and make a baby soon. At least give yourself an heir. It’s not too bad for a martial artist in his early forties to have a kid.”

Anyone who reached the level of Senior Grandmaster could live longer than an average human being. Many lived to be over a hundred. In fact, that was the norm for them because they were physically stronger and healthier than the average person.

“I have never even thought about having a kid. It’s simply too troublesome.”

Tommy chuckled. He had ruled as the underground king for most of his life, so he never even thought about having a kid.

Jared simply grinned in response. He had no right to butt into matter like that, so he wouldn’t comment about it.

The Mans Decree Chapter 696

Chapter 696 Charming

Jared and Tommy drank away as loud music filled the entire place. Seeing the crowd dancing to the music like that, Jared felt rather relaxed.

Since the time he came out of prison, he hadn't been at ease like now.

"I guess you're a ladies' man, Mr. Chance," said Tommy out of the blue.

"Huh? What do you mean?" asked Jared in a confused tone.

Tommy didn't reply. He simply signaled with his eyes. Jared followed his line of sight and saw a lady in a tight black outfit. She was staring at Jared.

She had a stoic expression on, and the way she moved showed that she didn't belong with that crowd.

"Huh? Did she stay?"

Jared seemed confused when he saw that girl.

Tommy chuckled. "I have to go now, Mr. Chance. Don't stay out for too long, though. Don't forget, you have two women waiting for you at home."

Tommy stood up and left. Jared, on the other hand, walked toward the lady with his glass of wine with him. He sat right down beside her.

"Why haven't you left? Did you stay just to keep me company?" asked Jared in confusion.

His words prompted the lady to stun a little. She smiled and flashed her pearly whites immediately after. The beauty she possessed could bring an entire country to its knee. Jared's heart skipped a beat.

"Is this how you flirt with girls?" asked the lady.

"Flirting? With who? You?" said Jared. He chuckled, then added, "I am not suicidal, so there's no way I'd flirt with you. Also, you should stop using that Seduction Technique. It doesn't work on me."

He walked right out of the bar afterward. Panic flashed past the lady's eyes. She hurried to chase after him.

Jared walked in the front while the lady followed closely behind.

"Why are you following me around? Don't even think about staying at my place. My girlfriend is there," said Jared without holding back.

"You're a man. Are you really okay with watching a girl like me spend the night on the streets? Perhaps we can go to a hotel instead?"

The lady looked sultry and was being coquettish to Jared. She was so close to him that her sweet perfume was drifting right into his nose.

That scent and the way the lady was looking at him... Everything made Jared's eyes glow. He walked over as though he were under her hypnosis.

The lady grinned upon seeing that. Her eyes, however, shone with both satisfaction and distaste at the time.

Jared walked numbly to the lady, but just as she was about to take him away, his gaze instantly cleared up. He slapped her right on her head and warned, "I've told you, Melanie. Your tricks won't work. If Mr. Deragon finds out you are still using your Seduction Technique on me, he will surely reprimand you."

After smacking her across her head, Jared turned around with a smile on his face.

"Melanie? Who is that?" asked the lady, who was instantly confused.

Jared seemed surprised. He turned around to face the lady. "You're Melanie. Why are you playing dumb? Don't tell me you're pretending to have lost your memories. I won't buy your lies."

Jared rolled his eyes at the lady. Man, this woman really knows how to act. She can be a movie star at this point.

Just as he was sighing, the lady's figure blurred over. A bright glow from her hand ambushed Jared.

She moved quickly at that moment, and the dagger she had with her was aiming right at Jared's face.

There wasn't even a hint of hesitation or mercy.

"Go to hell!"

Her eyes glowed with immense cruelty, and her gaze had more bloodlust than anyone Jared had met.

The mere sight of it dropped his jaw. "What the hell? Are you insane?"

As soon as he finished talking, the incredible aura within him flushed out.

He flicked his finger a little to send a silver needle flying. It hit the dagger and caused a flicker under the night's sky.