A Cue for Love chapter 825

Chapter 825

Chapter 825 See You In A Different Light

However, Seamus stubbornly refused to say anything.

Natalie's almond-shaped eyes turned cold, and she warned, "If you tell me where the exit is, you won't die right away. But if you refuse, you'll die right here, right now! An intelligent person will know nothing is more important in this world than one's life."

Despite her threat, Seamus still clenched his jaw tightly and remained silent.

"It doesn't seem like you intend to reveal anything. Well, it looks like the next shot will have to be at your heart..." With that, Natalie dug the barrel of the gun into Seamus' back.

There was no doubt that Seamus was terrified of dying. His heart was in his mouth when he felt the gun's barrel pressing into his back.

There's no saying when Mr. Gale will arrive. In any case, I can't just die here like this!

Just as Natalie was about to pull the trigger, Seamus finally blurted out, "Okay, okay! I'll tell you! The exit is inside the cabinet next to the power station. It's not a real cabinet. It's the only way out of the base."

Seamus felt as if a weight had been lifted off his chest after saying that.

But just then, two gunshots rang out. Seamus got hit twice, one shot in each knee, and crimson blood started flowing immediately.

Writhing in agony, he shouted, "You b*tch! How could you go against your word? I f*cking told you everything, yet you still shot me!"

“Seems like you were telling the truth,” Natalie responded impassively.

Then, she shot Benjamin a look, indicating for him to let go of the young assistant. After all, he had gotten shot in the joints of each limb. While the injuries would not be fatal, there was no way for him to move at all.

“You b*tch! You dare to trick me?” Seamus glared at Natalie fiercely.

Glancing at him, Natalie replied lightly, “Hush... The more you talk, the faster you’ll lose blood.”

After collecting all the ampoules that possibly contained the antidote, Natalie and Benjamin’s goal changed to getting themselves out of there safely.

Hence, they ignored Seamus as he lay on the floor and hurried toward the power station within the hidden underground research facility. The power station was large and eye-catching, so they quickly found it and located the cabinet.

It looked like a nondescript cabinet, but when Benjamin opened the door, he discovered it led to a dark passageway.

The sirens wailed louder and louder, and they could detect the sound of footsteps approaching from all directions.

“We have no time to lose.”

Worried that the passageway would be unsafe, Benjamin bent down and crawled in first.

Natalie followed him closely, shutting the cabinet’s door behind her.

Besides being dark and cramped, it was hard to see ahead clearly in the passageway, which made it challenging for Benjamin to make his way through.

Finally, it started getting a little brighter. Benjamin pushed aside the hard and hollow manhole cover, only to see that the passageway led to a warehouse above ground filled with goods piled up high.

Natalie and Benjamin had finally escaped safely!

The former walked up to one of the piles of goods and lifted the tarp covering them, only to see a shiny AK rifle before her eyes.

Natalie inhaled sharply. "Firearms?"

An underground bio lab with a warehouse of firearms above it! And on Chanaean soil! It's simply outrageous!

"There's no time to look around. We have to hurry up and leave," Benjamin reminded.

"Okay."

Knowing that they were not out of the woods yet, they did not continue exploring the firearms warehouse and turned to leave.

Alas, when they opened the warehouse's doors to walk out, their gazes fell upon a man who had a cigarette between his lips and was pointing a gun directly at them.

Blowing a puff of smoke into the air, Gale uttered coldly, "Tsk, tsk, tsk... Natalie Nichols, you're way more capable than I thought. You possess such exceptional abilities that you even found the escape route from the base. No wonder your twin sister lost to you. You've made me see you in a different light time and time again. I don't even have the words to describe you!"

A Cue for Love chapter 826

Chapter 826

Chapter 826 An Unavoidable Confrontation

“And you,” Gale continued, shifting his gaze to Benjamin.

He added in a snide tone, “The vanquished opponent who escaped from my clutches. I can’t believe you didn’t die after suffering such severe injuries. Instead, you became this woman’s lackey. You were lucky the last time. This time, you won’t be so lucky.”

Natalie and Benjamin had not expected that Gale would accurately predict their course of action, setting up a trap at the warehouse and patiently waiting for his prey to show up.

Benjamin had had first-hand experience of just how powerful Gale was.

Now, we meet again in an unavoidable confrontation. Given the current circumstances, Natalie and I are no match for him at all.

Pulling Natalie behind him, Benjamin called out, “If you want to attack, just come at me.”

Gale raised his eyebrows. “Oh, my. Are you still planning on playing the part of a knight in shining armor at a time like this? I’m afraid your brain is addled. At most, the both of you will have the chance to accompany each other as you descend to hell and see whether you’re fated to become a couple in the underworld.”

“You!”

“What’s the matter? Still up to your same old tricks?” Gale sneered, then fired a shot at Benjamin.

Although Benjamin dodged to avoid getting hit, he got shot in the arm.

Glancing around the warehouse and seeing a small truck parked inside, Natalie said to Benjamin, "You don't need to defeat him. Just stall him." With that, she pushed the gun she held into his hand.

Taking the gun from her, Benjamin launched into a counter-attack.

Gale had thought the duo was unarmed, so he was stunned when Benjamin started shooting at him.

"Benjamin Millers, don't try to put on a ruse!"

Rage surged within Gale, and he fired several consecutive shots at Benjamin.

All Benjamin could do was hide in the gaps between the piles of goods in the warehouse to dodge the bullets and retaliate when Gale was unprepared.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

The loud cracks of their gunshots reverberated throughout the warehouse.

However, just as Benjamin tried to pull the trigger again, he realized he had no more bullets in the gun chamber.

Seeing that he had run out of bullets, Gale cackled coldly.

"Oh, Benjamin. Why did you give up your peaceful life as a noble to work for Mr. Nine? And now, here you are with your life on the line. Do you think it's worth it?"

Benjamin pressed his lips together and did not respond, his brows tightly furrowed.

He knew there was no way out behind him.

Even if I continue hiding from him like this, I won't be able to escape the fate of getting cornered by him and killed by a single shot. Don't tell me it'll happen as he predicted. Will I meet my end here?

At that moment, the engine of the small truck inside the warehouse roared to life.

Following the rumble of its exhaust pipe, the vehicle sped toward Gale.

Seeing that, Gale gaped in shock, then subconsciously retreated several steps. It had never crossed his mind that the small truck's engine would suddenly start.

As the vehicle drew nearer, he finally had a clear look at the person in the truck's cab. It was Natalie!

It was then that he realized Natalie had not been cowering in a corner. Instead, she had slipped quietly toward the truck while he and Benjamin were engaged in a gunfight.

How devious!

He dove out of the way, narrowly avoiding getting run over by the truck and tumbling to the floor in a miserable heap.

Instead of running him over, Natalie had only wanted to divert his attention. After ramming the truck toward him, she reversed it, flung open the front passenger seat's door, and shouted at Benjamin, "Quick! Get in!"

Catching on at once, Benjamin nodded and swiftly climbed into the truck, ignoring the injury on his arm.

As soon as Natalie saw that he was inside the truck, she floored the accelerator and drove straight toward the warehouse's doors.

The truck sped off with a squeal of tires as she put the pedal to the metal.

Gale cursed under his breath, then quickly jumped into the off-road vehicle parked at the warehouse's entrance and gave chase.
