Chapter 211

Chapter 211

Lucas and Justin made quite a big noise in the study. Dwayne could even hear their conversation from outside.

Naturally, Rebecca, who had followed Lucas upstairs, heard what Justin had said too. Dwayne had no right to tell Rebecca to leave. Rebecca said she had something to say to Lucas and would just wait outside.

At first, Lucas and Justin didn't make too much noise, so Dwayne didn't ask Rebecca to leave.

He could never have guessed that the two would end up quarreling.

Well, that couldn't count as a quarrel. Justin did all the yelling.

That was no big deal since he was Lucas' grandfather.

But things became awkward when Justin mentioned Louis and Louis' mistress.

Rebecca was Louis' wife. The topic Justin had brought up was embarrassing to her.

Right now, Justin was obviously furious, and Dwayne didn't dare to knock on the door to interrupt him. He could only stand there expressionlessly.

Rebecca had been married to Louis for so many years, and she no longer had feelings for him. When she heard that Louis' mistress also had a child, she did not feel anything.

However, when she heard Justin say that he did not necessarily have to make Lucas heir to the Thomas family, Rebecca's face turned pale.

Rebecca's family was also a wealthy family in LA. It was Louis' honor to have married Rebecca since his family was less good then.

Although Rebecca's family was no longer the same as before, its clout still lingered on.

Rebecca was indeed a coward, but that was not why she didn't fight back. Rebecca didn't tolerate Louis' mistress for no reason.

Rebecca knew that she wouldn't have a promising future, but her children still got a chance. As long as she stayed in the Thomas family, her kids would inherit everything.

Yet Justin had just mentioned another possibility. Rebecca wouldn't bear that.

Rebecca glanced at him. "Dwayne, when did father know that woman had a son?"

Dwayne also glanced at Rebecca, feeling very awkward. "Only recently. Don't worry, Mr. Thomas was just scaring Lucas. As the saying goes, criticism is a form of love. Mr. Thomas only said that because he wanted Lucas to face his own heart."

He comforted her briefly, and Rebecca did not say anything else. The two stood outside the door. Dwayne glanced at the door of the study, hoping that Lucas and Justin would quickly end their conversation.

Justin finished his harsh words and sat there, gasping for breath.

Lucas was absent-minded for a while. After a while, he looked at Justin. "Grandpa, your hard work made the Thomas family. You may give it to whomever you like. I won't have any complaints. But I do hope, you could just stay out of things between Jessica and me."

Lucas said with a cold face, got up, and left directly, which made Justin's blood pressure rise.

Lucas opened the door and saw Dwayne and Rebecca outside. He frowned and expressionlessly walked past them.

Dwayne was worried about Justin's blood pressure and hurriedly walked in. He could tell that Justin's blood pressure indeed rose out of anger, so he hurried to make Justin take the hypotensor.

Rebecca stood at the door, looking at Justin, who was leaning against the table. Having recalled what Justin had said, Rebecca suddenly had an evil thought.

But soon, Justin took the pill and caught sight of Rebecca at the door. His eyes lit up at once.

Rebecca felt a bit guilty, so she quickly turned to chase Lucas. "Lucas, wait, let's talk!"

Justin gradually recovered. He frowned and asked, "When did Rebecca come?"

Dwayne was a little embarrassed. "She has been waiting for Mr. Lucas at the door for a while."

Justin understood what Dwayne was implying, and his face fell. "So, she heard what I just said?"

When Louis and Rebecca were first married, Justin was quite satisfied with Rebecca's family.

Yet a few years later, after Max was born, Rebecca's family started waning. But Justin was still satisfied with Rebecca. However, Justin then realized that Rebecca was too weak to have any control over Louis. That was when Justin's discontent grew.

But Rebecca was indeed fertile. She had given birth to two sons and a daughter.

Though Justin cared about benefits a lot, he had admitted that Louis couldn't marry a wife with a better family background than Rebecca. Louis' reputation was already ruined.

But Rebecca was too weak to control her husband. Her son was not close to her, and she couldn't teach her daughter well, either.

If Max was still alive, Justin would still take his daughter-in-law seriously, but now that Max was gone and Lucas was not close to Rebecca, Justin could just vent his anger on her.

He paused for a moment and said, "Whatever. I don't care if she heard it or not."

Even if Justin decided to welcome Louis' wife to the Thomas family, Rebecca wouldn't dare to have any objections.

Dwayne looked at Justin, hesitated for a moment, and couldn't help but say, "Mr. Thomas, actually, Lucas still respects Mrs. Thomas."

Justin frowned and said, "Fine. Tell her to come up later."

After all, Rebecca was Lucas' mother.

Rebecca only caught up with Lucas when they almost reached the first floor.

Lucas had just quarreled with Justin, and now his face looked stern.

But Rebecca did have something to say. "Lucas."

Lucas was in a particularly bad mood, but Rebecca was his mother. He glanced at her and suppressed his impatience. "What's the matter?"

The two of them stood on the stairs on the first floor. That was not a place for talking.

"Let's go to the garden and talk there."

Rebecca then hurried to go downstairs, afraid that Lucas might refuse her.

Lucas frowned and followed Rebecca.

The two walked to the corner of the garden. The servants had done trimming the plants, so no one was there. It was quiet, a perfect place for talking.

Rebecca looked up at Lucas. Lucas had been very indifferent since he was a child, so Rebecca rarely had close conversations with her youngest son.

Rebecca thought for a while and then carefully said, "I saw the news online today. It says Jessica..."

Lucas frowned and said, "What's your point?"

Rebecca saw Lucas frown and was even more at a loss. "Lucas, don't misunderstand me. I just want you to be happy. If you and Jessica get married again, you two can move out. There will be fewer conflicts in that case. Well, you must have your own thoughts. I won't interfere. I'm just offering a piece of advice."

Lucas looked at Rebecca and thought of what Justin had said.

In fact, Rebecca was quite miserable. She had been married into the Thomas family for forty years. Her husband could not stay with her, and her father-in-law did not like her.

Sometimes, Lucas wondered what kept Rebecca here. If Rebecca had been half ambitious as Jessica, the Thomas family wouldn't have been so suffocating.

Rebecca waited for a while, yet Lucas still did not say anything. He just gazed at Rebecca.

Lucas' gaze made Rebecca feel guilty. She smiled awkwardly. "Lucas, I just want you to be happy."

"Have you been happy all these years here?"

Rebecca did not expect Lucas to suddenly ask such a question. She paused for a moment and thought of what Justin had just said. Her face paled. "Lucas, your grandfather..."

"Instead of worrying about me and Jessica, why don't you think about how to deal with Louis' mistress? If her son got into this house, would you live a happy life?"

Lucas didn't feel like discussing his parents' marriage. Of course, he didn't want Rebecca to mind his business, either.

Still, as Rebecca's son, Lucas wanted her mom to stay tough.

Even if Rebecca's family was waning, it still had its clout. Rebecca had plenty of dowries back then. After getting married, she never lived a luxurious life and even became deeply religious, so she must have a great sum of fortune, enough to support her life even if she left the Thomas family. Lucas didn't understand why she hung in.

However, Rebecca didn't think that way. She thought Lucas was despising her.

Rebecca's face paled and lowered her head, not daring to look at Lucas. "I know I'm too useless."

Lucas couldn't bear to see Rebecca like this. He didn't know why a noble young lady like her would become someone like this. Even Olivia's personality was much better than Rebecca's.
