

Chapter 488

Overjoyed Suzanne did not seem out of the ordinary, and neither did Javier. They appeared as if neither of them knew about it, and everything was exactly the same as it was.

After arriving at Hotel Garcia, Javier collected everyone's IDs and took them to Audrey. Audrey was stunned when she saw the entire team in the buses, even though she had prepared herself mentally.

It was her first time taking in a tour group, and there were over a hundred people. She still hadn't gotten used to it.

Fortunately, she had made arrangements beforehand to prevent things from getting chaotic. She had already greeted them, and the services were overall great. After Suzanne greeted Javier, she followed the waiter into the lobby.

Javier was flabbergasted. "Why are you glaring at me? I didn't bully you today."

Audrey replied angrily, "You have such a beautiful girlfriend, and you're still out here sowing your wild oats! Gosh!" Javier suddenly understood and immediately asked, "Are you a wild oat?"

Audrey rolled her eyes at Javier. "Your girlfriend is younger and more elegant than I am. She's obviously your wild oat, while I'm just an unplowed field."

Javier nodded solemnly. "Fine. I'll satisfy you tonight." Audrey was slightly startled before quickly figuring it out. She was talking about a plow, as in the farm tool, while Javier talked about the action, which was vulgar. Audrey glared at Javier, embarrassed. She then turned and left. Javier grabbed her slender, fair hand. "Where are you going? I haven't bullied you today. I have to satisfy you tonight." Audrey replied shyly, "What are you talking about? Let go. I have to serve them dinner!" "First of all, you're not a chef. Second of all, you're not a waiter. You don't need to serve their dinner. Just serve me well. Give me all the perks today."

Javier made himself sound like someone living in poverty. It made Audrey angry and amused at the same time.

Fortunately, Javier was just saying that and did not make a fool of her in public since there were so many people around. After Audrey left, Javier saw Jordan intentionally hiding in a corner.

The moment he saw Jordan's figure, Jordan quickly hid behind the wall.

Obviously, the cowardly figure would act like that as he was plotting something evil.

Javier did not want to deal with it because Jordan did not deserve his attention after all.

However, he thought about Suzanne and her team of scientific researchers and called Running Man.

It was simple. He simply wanted Running Man to keep an eye on Jordan.

It was Running Man's forte when it came to keeping watch on someone. As long as they kept a close eye on Jordan, there won't be any unexpected events. Javier instructed Running Man on the phone before entering the lobby of Hotel Garcia. After sitting and waiting in the restaurant for a while, people started coming down after leaving their luggage in their respective rooms.

Everyone's faces were beaming. They said that the atmosphere was good, and they thanked Javier repeatedly, calling him their "Chairman" every chance they got. From a distance, Audrey was instructing her employees to work. She was a little confused. She had always thought that Javier was just the son of a wealthy family, but she did not expect him to be a chairman. He was so young. There happened to be a young girl next to him who was one of Javier's employees. Audrey asked, "Who exactly is Javier Kersey?" The young girl put on her glasses. "He's our chairman. Didn't you hear people calling him that?"

After asking in surprise, the young girl suddenly understood. "Uh. I'm sorry, I just realized what you meant. He's the chairman of Reivaj Group."

"Reivaj Group? The Reivaj Group that builds cars and makes movies and recently came here to build a hospital!?" "Yeah. What do you think? Our chairman is very young and handsome, right?" Audrey was a little stunned as she looked at the young girl fangirling over him. In any case, she never would have expected Javier, who she called the Triple-J, would be the chairman of the nationally renowned Reivaj Group. Although she was seldom on the Internet, she had seen the movie "Ackerman" and had bought one Chinese car. In fact, to go a little deeper, she had even been to Reivaj Hospital to see a specialist a while ago when she was feeling unwell! One could call her a loyal "old customer" of Reivaj Group. However, she never thought that Javier, the Triple-J, was the chairman of Reivaj Group. She found it unbelievable. She took out her phone and started searching the Internet. She was shocked when she compared the photos. It was him!

Audrey was a little scared. The chairman of Reivaj Group was known as a genius in business. Every move he made would surely turn into a great success. Many universities reached out to invite him to teach at their business schools, but he couldn't be bothered to do it.

She had actually put a paper cutter against the neck of someone so respectable. But of course, the most embarrassing thing was that Javier had carried her and tried to do the deed with her.

Audrey felt ashamed when she thought about it!

Other than embarrassment, she realized there was also a hint of unconcealable pride in her heart.

After all, someone so handsome and capable liked her and wanted to sleep with her. She had no intention of gaining quick success, nor did she regret refusing to sleep with Javier.

Nonetheless, any woman would be flattered and proud when a successful young man who was 10 years younger liked her.

That was the best form of recognition one could have of their looks and body.

However, she quickly put her pride aside because she knew exactly what she wanted. She just wanted to guide Jordan on the right path. It would be best if he could take over Hotel Garcia.

She was ready to raise this wastrel of a son if it could not work.

She had never thought about finding a man. No matter how extraordinary the man was, she would never find another man in her life.

From her point of view as a woman, one man was enough. If the man died, then she could live alone. Actually, she had to live alone. She would never allow the presence of another man in her life, nor did she need the company of another man.

It was a very traditional concept of chastity, but Audrey was just like that.

Because of that, as much as she was surprised to find out about Javier, it did not cause any substantial difference.

She was just surprised to learn about Javier's true identity.

The dinner was good, and everyone was very satisfied. Suzanne had high praises too. After dinner, everyone took a walk in the garden of Hotel Garcia. They were very satisfied with Javier's arrangement today.

A young female researcher asked Javier, "By the way, Mr. Kersey, how long can we stay here? Can we stay for three days?"

Javier replied with a smile, "Before I build your apartment, you guys can keep staying here. I think you can stay here for at least three months."

"My goodness. Long live Mr. Kersey!"

Young people were always more excited, especially when they were overjoyed. At that moment, Suzanne held Javier's arm and was filled with pride,

It was as if she wanted to show everyone that he was her man and that she was honored too.

However...she was not the real Suzanne. She was using her identity fraudulently. While everyone was having fun, something unexpected happened.
