Another loud cry could be heard outside the door immediately. "Jane, what happened to you, Jane?"

Kingston was the first to run out once the people in the ward heard that it was Sabrina's voice. Aino and Zayn also ran out after him. They then saw that not far from Hana's ward, Sabrina was straining herself to bend over to support Jane, who had an even bigger belly. At that moment, Jane was already in so much pain that she was almost sitting on the floor. It seemed that there was water flowing out from her pants.

“Jane! Jane, are you about to give birth?” asked Sabrina urgently.

Jane, who was sitting on the floor and had one arm on the wall, raised her head, then laughed. “Haha. Sabrina, what a coincidence. We said we were coming to visit your sister-in-law. I have just arrived at the hospital, and now I’m about to give birth? But I am clearly still half a month away from my due date. How come this little one is here early?”

“You’re still laughing, Jane?”
Sabrina was almost scared to death.

At that moment, Zayn and Kingston had also arrived in front of Jane and Sabrina. It was also inconvenient for Sabrina to move around with her pregnant belly. Kingston instinctively wanted to go over and support Sabrina. Sabrina then told Kingston, "First carry Jane to the gynecology, quick!"

Sabrina first took a cab to the summer house that Jane was staying at before coming to the hospital that day. Both of them only rushed to the hospital together after Sabrina had picked Jane up. When they were on the way to the hospital, they called Yvonne and Ruth. Both

Both Yvonne and Ruth could only come over after they got off work, so the two pregnant women came together in a cab to the hospital. When they were on the way, the cab driver even whispered that these two pregnant women were truly bold to come out together without someone else accompanying them. When they were getting out of the car, the kind cab driver even asked Sabrina, "Are the two of you alright? Do you need any help?"

Both Sabrina and Jane shook their heads. "No need."

Both Sabrina and Jane shook their heads. "No need."

The cab driver still muttered to himself, "They were already so far along, but no one from their family is following them. How can you husbands be so at ease? How can there be such irresponsible men in the world?"

Sabrina and Jane looked at each other, and then both of them laughed.

Both of their men were very good. Alex had been staying in South City to keep Jane accompanied. He had been handling all of his business matters through emails. He had hardly stepped out of the house in the past three months.

had hardly stepped out of the house in the past three months. However, those were important tasks in Kidon City, so there were many things that he needed to personally deal with. Therefore, he had no choice but to find time and make a trip back to Kidon City.

Sebastian, on the other hand, was truly swamped during that time. Other than being occupied with the Ford Group's matters, Sebastian was mainly busy with Zayn and Hana's wedding. After all, the two of them were a pair of miserable people who had gotten together after all the hardships, so Sebastian wanted them to have a great one. After he had just finished with the
