Never Late, Never Away Chapter 2077 - 2078

Never Late, Never Away Chapter 2077

"Uh... Well, he..." Jaden hesitated as he didn't quite know what to say.

"Caiden! Are you not home? I'm Noelle! I'm here to visit you!" Noelle shouted at the top of her lungs.

In the room, Caiden was currently lying on the bed and huddled tightly under the covers.

Dear God, may she leave quickly! He had both his hands clasped together, and his gaze was earnest. I really can't afford to cross this girl! After all, something bad always happens every time she's there!

He still remembered that he took swimming lessons when he was young. He stood beside the swimming pool for a long time, not daring to go in. In the next moment, Noelle kicked him into the pool, and he almost drowned back then.

During their schooldays, she always slacked off without completing her homework. When questioned by the teacher, she claimed that her brother tore them up. And the worse thing was, she said that her brother was Caiden Owens! As a result, the teacher went to his house and berated him severely...

There had been countless bizarre incidents that he never wanted such a thing to transpire again. Even for his return this time, he had considered it for a long time before he finally made up his mind.

"Caiden!" Noelle lifted her head and screeched in the living room.

At that, Caiden covered his ears and held his breath, afraid that the slightest movement would get him busted.

"Caiden Owens, if you don't come out, I'll storm upstairs!" Noelle roared unyieldingly.

“Good heavens! What are you doing? Caiden isn’t home, so stop yelling. It’s no use even if you scream yourself hoarse since he can’t possibly appear before you immediately.” Jaden patted her on the shoulder.

“Where did he go, then?”

“I don’t know. Who knows where he went when he’s always going and coming as he pleases?” Jaden shrugged as he spoke.

Hmm? He’s always going out? Don’t tell me he’s dating? That’s unlikely, no? Does he have a girlfriend now? No, that’s impossible! He’s mine, so how could he have possibly been stolen by some other woman?

“Jaden, answer this honestly. Does Caiden have someone else out there?” Noelle stared at the person before her coldly.

Pfft! Water spurted out of Jaden’s mouth upon hearing that.

“Jeez, can you please be more circumspect in your speech? Why did you phrase it as ‘having someone else out there?’ He’s not married, so it’s normal even if he dates,” he hastily clarified.

“No way! What would become of me if he dates?” Noelle was a tad panicked at that moment.

Well, what does the matter of him dating or otherwise has to do with her?

“That’s his freedom, okay? Noelle, tell me how you’ve been these few years. Have you gotten yourself a boyfriend?” Jaden clutched her arm.

Hah! A boyfriend? I’ve been waiting for Caiden for so many years just so that we can continue where we left off back then when he returns one day. And now, he actually has another woman out there. How dare he?

“No! Argh! I’m so pissed! Why didn’t you tell me when Caiden started dating?” Noelle plopped down onto the sofa huffily, her expression as dark as charcoal.

Is he really my biological brother when he doesn’t even tell me such an important thing?

“Gosh, what’s wrong with you? Wait... Noelle, don’t tell me you have feelings for Caiden?” Jaden abruptly turned serious.

“Are you an idiot, Jaden? I’ve had feelings for him for many years.” Noelle’s voice quivered slightly.

God, this is bad! This is really bad! What should I do now? Caiden has feelings for that senior of his, so she’s probably going to be hurt. No, I should really make things clear to her.

“Ah, just forget about it, okay? Caiden already has someone whom he likes, and he has had feelings for her for many years. So, you should just give up,” Jaden advised with a sniffle.

Instead of waiting around for Caiden to reject Noelle, it’s better for me to tell her beforehand to avoid any awkwardness between them down the road.

“Who is she? It’s that senior of his, yes?” Noelle asked out of the blue.

Huh? How does she know about Joan Watts? Jaden eyed her suspiciously.

Has this sister of mine become a bloodhound that she actually managed to sniff that out?

“I’ve noticed something off about it back when he was in college, and sure enough, it’s that senior of his!” Noelle’s gaze turned vicious. “Eh, but I heard that she’s already married.”

I couldn’t have made a mistake there. She even has a child now, and her relationship with her husband is very close. I initially thought that Caiden would give up, but never had I expected things to be so complicated.

“Alright, just leave well enough alone, okay? You know full well the kind of person Caiden is. No one can stop him from doing something he wants to do. Anyway, don’t fret about it. Just go about your own business. As for Caiden, stop having any ideas about him. I’ve reminded you of this, so don’t do anything stupid!” Jaden urged after taking a sip of water.

No, I've got to seek that woman out! I want to find out what exactly she thinks about Caiden!

"I'm leaving, Jaden." As Noelle said that, she spun on her heels to leave.

"Where are you going? It's late, so hurry up and go home!"

"That has got nothing to do with you, so just mind your own business!" As Jaden stared at the retreating back, he shook his head and heaved a sigh.

This sister of mine has something in common with Caiden—once they get something into their heads, they're unstoppable! No one would be able to change their minds.

"Has she left?" Caiden queried in a whisper as he poked his head out.

"Yes, she has..."

"Oh yes, tell Caiden that I've been over for a visit when he comes back!" Without warning, Noelle came back.

At that, Caiden hurriedly closed his room door. Leaning against the wall, he inhaled deeply.

Damn it, why did she come back? Was she trying to give me a heart attack?

"I'm leaving, and there's no need to see me off." Cutting Jaden off, Noelle then left.

Gah! She's a woman, so why do I feel as though she's even more manly than me? Jaden thumped his head in frustration.

"Well, she has left, so come down and eat your noodles!" the man downstairs hollered.

Phew! She has finally left! Upon hearing that, Caiden removed his cap and mask, followed by his jacket. Then, he slowly opened the door and peered around before stepping out cautiously.

"Your sister is too scary! God, I really can't take it!" he grouched.

Good heavens! There's actually someone in this world who can scare him, huh? That's rather astounding!

"Help yourself. It's fresh from the oven." Jaden placed a bowl of noodles in front of him.

"Okay, thanks. Aren't you going to eat as well?" Caiden lifted his head and looked at him seriously.

After a moment's hesitation, Jaden hurried over to the living room.

"Actually, the noodles in your bowl are my leftovers..." After saying that, he immediately dashed into his room while chortling away.

Noelle had always been a woman who was bold and lived with no regrets. She had long since been perturbed about Caiden having feelings for Joan, but she then let it go when Caiden went abroad, and Joan got married. However, she had never expected him to still have designs on Joan now.

People claim that time can extinguish one's feelings, especially a crush that has never seen the light of the day. But why hasn't that shameless guy, Caiden Owens, changed after so long?

"Why are you so anxious? Here, I've gotten it for you. Remember to treat me to a meal next time, okay? I've got something to do, so I'll be leaving first."

"Sure, no problem! I'll definitely treat you to a meal!" Noelle flashed the person a smile.

Staring at the slip of paper in her hand, she whipped out her cell phone at once and dialed the number without an ounce of hesitation.

"Hello. Is this Ms. Watts? Joan Watts, I mean," she asked in a low voice.

"Hello, Joan speaking. May I know who you are?" Sure enough, it's her! Noelle's lips curved into a smirk.

"Good morning, Ms. Watts. I'm Noelle Ford, Jaden Ford's sister. There's something I'd like to ask you, so I wonder if it's convenient for us to meet." She was exceedingly polite and gentle as she spoke, not betraying the slightest hint of the true feelings within her.
