Never Late, Never Away Chapter 2103 - 2104

Never Late, Never Away Chapter 2103

“Lucius, you’re really good at this!”

“Lucius, you’re amazing! Your dad is awesome as well!”

“Not only is your dad handsome, but he’s very good at rock climbing, too. I’m so jealous of your family.”

As the children chattered away, Joan stood at the side awkwardly. Oh well. He’s obviously not Lucius’s father, but now he has become the best father in the eyes of these kids.

“Hi!” One of their parents came over to Joan. “I’m sure the three of you are family even though you’re not married to him yet. Am I right? Both of you look really great with each other.”

Joan did not know how to reply that parent.

How could the three of us be a family? We don’t even look alike. Caiden is a young handsome man, and I’m just an ordinary housewife. How are we a good match for one another?

After a pause, she explained, “No, you’ve misunderstood. Mr. Caiden is actually a friend of mine. Lucius’s father is quite busy lately, so he can’t come over to this event.”

“Ah, I see. What a pity. Both of you really look great together.”

Joan forced a smile and turned to look for Lucius, having no intention to continue the conversation with her.

I wonder when Larry will be back. If Ms. Young knows that he didn’t make it to this event, I’m sure she’d nag at him.

“Mom, what are you doing? Come!” Lucius called out to her all of a sudden.

“Well done, Lucius! Keep up the good work. Let me take a photo for the three of you,” one of the teachers said, taking out her phone.

Caiden hurriedly pulled Joan to his side and held Lucius’s hand, grinning widely at the camera. Joan, on the other hand, could only bring herself to flash an awkward smile.

Throughout the camp, the teachers had been enjoying themselves, taking countless photos of the kids and their parents as mementos. If Larry comes across those photos, for sure he’d be infuriated. Joan sighed at the thought.

While Joan was racking her brain to think of ways to prevent that from happening, Caiden walked up to her and saw her troubled face. “What’s wrong, Joan? Did something happen?”

Caiden scrutinized her face. Is she thinking about Larry again? He then put his hands into his pockets and inched closer to her. “Joan, how was my performance today? Did I do well?”

Of course, he had done well. In fact, it’s way too well.

Joan replied, “Oh, you were terrific. Thank you so much for participating in this event. Otherwise, I’d have no idea how to explain it to Lucius.”

Caiden smiled at her praise, gloating.

Larry, no matter what, you’re definitely going to lose to me.

While over on the other side, the hospital was as busy as usual. The healthcare team was occupied with the administration of medication, and the patients were basking under the sunlight, getting their daily dose of vitamin D. Currently, Delilah was sitting in the garden with her eyes closed, facing the sky.

“Ms. Young, it’s time to take your medicines,” a nurse called gently.

However, she did not respond.

Thinking that she might have fallen asleep, the nurse called again, “Ms. Young?”

Dustin appeared and took away the pills in the nurse's hand. "Don't worry about it. I'll handle this."

Hearing his voice, Delilah opened her eyes and glanced at him. "Why are you here?"

"I'm here to visit you," Dustin replied.

Huh, he's definitely here for Joan. She gave him a side-eye. Even a blind man could see that.

"Ms. Young, where is Joan these days? I haven't seen her lately." Dustin looked around, finding the woman he loved.

"Huh? I thought you're here for me. Why are you now looking for Joan instead?" she questioned deliberately.

Not knowing what to reply to her, Dustin glanced away and scratched his head awkwardly.

Delilah sighed and told him the truth, "She's gone to the field trip organized by Lucius's school. She'd probably be back by this afternoon."

What? Why did no one tell me about this? No wonder I haven't seen Larry in a while, too. They must've gone to that event together.

"Are you disappointed? You should just get yourself a girlfriend already. Stop wasting your time on unrequited love," Delilah advised.

No, I can't let her go. As long as I lay hold of Norton Corporation, I'm sure that she will be willing to be with me.

Seeing right through his mind, Delilah continued, "Joan is never into Larry's money. What she loves in him is his character."

Even though what she said was true, Dustin thought he still stood a chance to win over Joan. If I really get my hands on Norton Corporation, there is a possibility that Larry would file a divorce out of inferiority.

Fate was truly a weird thing. Problems or difficulties might come in a series, one after another, and sometimes, they could come all at once, overwhelming everyone. Even though I feel tired of pursuing her at times, it's not the time for me to give up yet. No one knows what's going to happen next. With such thought in mind, Dustin smiled at Delilah before bidding her goodbye.

After the camp ended, Caiden drove Joan and Lucius home. As he had some work to do at home, he headed straight back to his place after dropping them off at their house.

When Jaden saw him back home, he munched on his chips and said, "Yo, Caiden. You're finally back. How was it? Did you have fun these two days?"

"Don't talk to me. I'm dog-tired." Caiden did not even bother to flick a glance at his friend and flopped onto the couch.

Sensing something was off, Jaden stood up hastily and went over to Caiden. "Hey, are you okay? Are you feeling unwell? Should I bring you to the hospital? Your parents have entrusted you to me and asked me to take good care of you. If anything happens to you, I couldn't bring myself to face them anymore."

Ever since he was young, Caiden had never liked anyone mentioning his parents, so now he became even more frustrated after hearing Jaden's words.

"Jaden, how many times have I told you already? Don't mention them in front of me, okay? I'm really tired now," Caiden said, turning his face away from Jaden.

Upon hearing his words, Jaden shut his mouth immediately.

After a while, he fell asleep on the couch and started snoring lightly.

Seeing that his friend had fallen asleep, Jaden did not want to bother him and went back to his room quietly

He then took his phone from the table and started scrolling through social media. As he was browsing Twitter, he suddenly saw pictures of Caiden posted by the school teachers.

“What? Is this Caiden? No way. I’ve never thought that he’s someone who likes kids.” Jaden stared incredulously at his phone and tapped on the first picture.

It was a picture of Caiden helping Lucius to change clothes, looking like a perfect dad, while Lucius smiled happily at him.

“How did he manage to stay with kids for two freaking days?” Jaden muttered to himself.

Was he out of his mind? Why did he do that?

Just then, a female voice rang from the outside. “Jaden, open the door!”

Oh no! Why is she here now? Hearing Noelle’s voice, Jaden put down the phone right away and scrambled out of his room. When he saw that Caiden was still fast asleep, he smacked Caiden’s back frantically and called, “Wake up, Caiden! Go and hide in your room. My sister is here. Hurry up!”

However, he did not bulge at all.

Left with no other choice, Jaden kicked him in the rear. “Caiden Owens!”

Finally, he snapped his eyes open and yelled angrily, “What the hell are you doing?”

“Get back to your room now. Noelle is here!”

As soon as he heard her name, Caiden sprang up to his feet, wide awake. “What? She’s here? Tell her I’m not here.” With that, he dashed up to his room.

“Caiden, let me in! I know you’re in there!” Noelle shouted, banging on the door.

When Jaden saw that Caiden was back in his room, he quickly put back the throw pillows in their original place and sprinted to the door. “Hi, Noelle. Why are you visiting again? Did you miss me? Why is my little sister so clingy?”

Noelle pushed him away from the door and stepped inside. “Go away. I’m not here for you.”

How could this girl abandon her own brother for another man?

Dejected, he knitted his eyebrows and grumbled, "What about me, Noelle? I'm the one who always treated you well. Why are you here for Caiden instead? Did he buy you any handbags or lipsticks as I did for you?"
