Never Late, Never Away Chapter 2105 - 2106

Never Late, Never Away Chapter 2105

My poor sister has fallen head over heels in love with Caiden. If she marries him in the future, I wouldn't be shocked to see her giving all of her to him. Jaden shook his head and crossed his arms, looking at Noelle.

"Where's Caiden? Where did he go?" she asked, tugging his arm.

Hmph! She only comes to me when she needs me to find Caiden. Jaden turned his face away from her, acting petulant. "No idea. I didn't see him."

"Please, Jaden. Tell me where he is." After a while, when she saw that he was still refusing to talk, she glared at him and snapped, "Jaden Owens, are you going to tell me or not? If you..."

Suddenly, someone knocked on the door, cutting her off.

What the heck? Only Jaden, Caiden, and I knew about this place. Who else knows about their address? Noelle stared suspiciously at her brother.

Meanwhile, fear started to rise in Jaden's heart. Could it be Caiden's mother? Previously, he had warned me not to reveal our address to his parents. Did I accidentally tell them? Hmm, no, I don't think I did that. Wait, I was drunk the last time I met them. Did I spill the beans? Oh no...

Jaden knocked his head in frustration.

Ugh, I shouldn't have drunk that time. Drinking too much can really bring trouble.

The person outside was still knocking on the door. He hesitated for a moment before finally relenting and opened the door.

"Welcome, Mrs. Owens," Jaden said without lifting his eyes to look at the person standing in front of him.

Joan stood at the door, feeling awkward.

Should I go in? He called me Mrs. Owens just now, but I'm not her.

"Um, I'm not Mrs. Owens," she stated gently.

Jaden raised his gaze in an instant and looked at her in surprise. "Joan, what brings you here?"

She fished out a phone from her pocket. "Caiden accidentally left his phone in my bag this morning, so I'm here to give it back to him."

Oh my gosh! I thought it was his mother who came. Jaden heaved a sigh of relief.

She put the phone in his hand and smiled. "Please pass it to him later. I'll be heading off then. Bye."

However, before she could leave, Noelle came out of the living room and yelled, "Wait!"

She had overheard their conversation just now.

What a hypocrite! She previously said that she had no feelings for Caiden and even promised that she wouldn't have any ambiguous relationship with him because she was already married and had a kid. If it weren't for those pictures on Twitter, I would have believed her and go abroad without a care in the world.

"Joan, why are you here? Wasn't two days of camping date enough?" Noelle sneered.

Joan whipped around in response and locked eyes with Noelle. Standing off to the side, Jaden's brows were furrowed deeply as he pulled her to his side. "Noelle, what are you talking about?"

"I'm telling the truth! Joan, you don't even dare to admit that you seduced him?"

What does she want me to admit? Was she talking about Caiden participating in the field trip? It was just a coincidence. She's misunderstood us!

Joan sighed and explained, “Ms. Ford, I think you’ve misunderstood the situation. There’s nothing between Caiden and me. We did not do anything that crossed the line...”

“Have you heard yourself? You’re ridiculous, Joan. You’re married, and yet, you slept with another man. Are you not embarrassed? You’re cheating on your husband!” Noelle cut her off.

Hearing the offensive words from her mouth, Jaden figured the only way to stop the quarrel was to separate Noelle from Joan, so he hurriedly pulled his sister into the house and beckoned Joan to leave.

“Let me go, Jaden! Did you know what Caiden had been doing for the last two days? He had gone to that damn field trip organized by her son’s school,” Noelle continued, struggling against Jaden’s grip.

Joan was rendered speechless. It was not my fault!

Most of the time, people only believed what they saw and what they wanted to hear. The truth, to them, was irrelevant. Joan knew that Noelle liked Caiden, and now that Caiden had done so much for her, Noelle’s jealousy was understandable. I wanted to try my best to explain the truth to her, but I don’t think it would make a change.

“We’re just friends. Please don’t make any false assumptions about us. To me, he’s just a junior who had saved my life before. I really don’t have any other feelings for him,” Joan continued to explain herself.

“B*tch, did you really think that I have no idea what you’ve done to him? When you guys were in college, all he could think of every day was you. Even after he graduated and went overseas, you were still the one he loved. Because of you, I have to wait for him until now!” Noelle bellowed, boiling with rage.

Joan could not help but scoff. What does she mean? When we were in college, I was not even close with him—we were just acquaintances. Why did she speak of me as if I was a slut?

“Let me repeat myself again: there is nothing going on between Caiden and me. Not then, not now, not ever. If you still don’t believe me, you can always go and ask Caiden yourself. I’ve got to go.” Joan then turned on her heel and left.

“Stop where you are! Joan, you wicked woman!” Noelle roared, struggling to get away from Jaden.

“That’s enough!” Suddenly, someone bellowed from upstairs.

Noelle collected herself and turned around slowly to the voice.

“Caiden, why didn’t you come out just now? You’re clearly at home.” She pouted.

Why do I have to come out? To get myself annoyed? To get myself to be tortured by her clinginess? After so many years, Caiden had never gotten the courage to tell Noelle that he really disliked her. Ever since they were young, she had always been chasing after him and clinging to him. And he hated it.

“Noelle, why are you here? If you have a problem with me, we need to talk it out. But if you’re just here to visit me, then you shall leave now,” Caiden spoke calmly and determinedly.

How can he do this to me? Noelle stared at the man she loved, eyes brimming with tears. Why is he acting so distant now? He was not such a cold person before. When we were young, he would always pamper me and let me do whatever I wanted. Why is he becoming like this?

Seeing Noelle shedding tears, Jaden grumbled in dissatisfaction, “Caiden, don’t be so harsh on her. She’s just concerned about you.”

“I don’t need her to care about me. In fact, I don’t need anyone to be concerned about me. All of these ‘concerns’ bring me nothing but annoyance!” Caiden raised his voice all of a sudden.

Noelle was stunned.

It turns out that he has always disliked and even hated me.

“Caiden, what should I do to make you happy then?” Noelle questioned tentatively, sniffing.

Without a second of hesitation, he replied, “All you need to do is stay away from me. The further, the better.”

Jaden’s eyes widened in shock. Even though Caiden and I have been friends since childhood, it doesn’t mean that he can hurt my sister like that.

“Caiden, you’ve gone too far!” Jaden yelled back.

However, Caiden merely sneered in response. He had long been tired of such life. Now, he preferred to live alone.

“That was all I wanted to say. Both of you can do whatever you want. I don’t want to waste any more time.” He swept a glance over them before going back into his room.

Meanwhile, in a building overseas, a man was sitting in a meeting room, having a discussion with a big company’s chairman. Their conversation was not very pleasant at first, but after ten minutes, the two of them seemed to be engaged in jovial exchanges.

“Larry, I didn’t know that you’re such a committed man.” The chairman laughed.

“Actually, every man has his romantic side...” As Larry continued to share his story, the chairman paid his full attention and was totally engrossed in it.

The chairman never had the intention to revoke the deal with Norton Corporation. He just needed Larry to travel here and held him up on behalf of someone.

“Okay, if that’s the case, it seems like I was not very clear with your company’s background previously. After listening to your explanation, I finally understand it now. The information given by my staff is not so comprehensive yet. I’ll reconsider the contract between your company and mine,” the chairman said and rose to his feet, extending his right hand to Larry.
